'NO TERRITORIAL AMBITION,' STALIN VOWS IN PLEDGE FOR RED WAR OF LIBERATION

Surprise Test Blackouts To Be Held Here

(Picture on Page 7.)

By AL SHARP.
Surprise blackouts which will follow as nearly as possible actual air-raid conditions will be held here as soon as possible, George M. (Pup) Phillips, civilian defense director for the metropolitan area, said yesterday.

"We need the blackouts and we'll have them as soon as the control center is established," Phillips added, pointing out that the budget for the control center has not yet been approved. "I hope the budget will be approved at meetings of the city and county authorities next week."

Methods Explained.
Phillips' announcement followed an all-day conference of regional civilian defense leaders who heard experts and authorities from Washington and other cities explain inner workings of the organization. The meetings were held at the Ansley hotel.

Phillips said there would be little use of having blackouts without a communications system to summon wardens, firemen, guards and others necessary to make the activity click.

The statement was in perfect accord with what authorities, including Dean James M. Landis, national civilian defense director, told regional leaders at the many meetings throughout the day.

Warns of Raids.
Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, who is in charge of plant protection, hammered at the fact the bombers will come. "We have definite assurance the enemy will bomb plants and cities," he said, adding that "all of our practice in the housing, clothing and food plants is carried out on that theory."

"Casualty drills—drills during which many incidents happen at once—are being held in plants throughout the nation," Admiral Woodward said. "We try to simulate actual bombing conditions."

Only One Hitch.
"In a South Carolina plant, for instance, we had the communications system disconnected. Then there were injured between the machines to be taken care of, fires lighted at various points and other incidents. Everything happened at once, but so well were the employees trained that the practice drill went off without a hitch—well, only one."

The "hitch" came, according to the plant manager's report to Woodward, when a worker took off his identification badge to enter the plant gate at the height of the excitement. He was not detected. However, he was known to other employees, the manager pointed out, and that was a minor detail.

Plants Self-Sufficient.
Organization of the plant protection forces is done with the idea of having the employees available to help the cities in the event of a raid. Woodward has reached 5,000, representing 5,000,000 workers in 23 states," he added.

Dr. George Baehr, chief medical officer of OGD, warned that doctors will be spread thinly for the civilian population, but that all precautions were being taken to have enough on hand. He explained in detail the setup of hospitals to which civilians might be taken for treatment in the event of an emergency.

Workers To Be Treated.
"Civilian defense workers injured during blackouts called by authorities will be treated, the government to pay the full cost on a basis of workman's compensation," Dr. Baehr stated.
Details of air-raid warning systems and control centers were given by M. Malloy, of Washington. "During a recent practice raid in a city of between 100,000 and 1,000,000 persons—I'd rather not identify it—we distributed 500 incidents to be reported," Malloy said. "Only 138 were reported in 40 minutes and the rest were not."

"You can see from that example how many lives would be lost and how fires would spread if the raid had been real," he continued, emphasizing that practice is the only method which will test the organization properly and bring out mistakes that later would prove costly.

NERVE CENTER—Here's one of the most secret and important protective services available to Atlanta in the event of an air raid. It's the air raid warning filter center and, wonder of wonders, it's manned by 400 women volunteers, whose first requisite is complete obedience to Uncle Sam's warning, "Button your lip!" Their own husbands don't even know the location of the center, which is under the supervision of the Army Signal Corps. On the balcony are Mrs. Emmett White, Mrs. Sidney Goldin, Mrs. William Agnew, Mrs. Stillwell

48-Hour Week Measure Killed In Committee

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) Legislation to limit war profits, increase the statutory work week from 40 to 48 hours, and freeze the status quo of closed and open shops for the duration of the war was killed today in the House Naval Committee by a vote of 13 to 12.

The action, taken under parliamentary procedure which bars reconsideration of the bill except through unanimous consent of the full committee, apparently meant that President Roosevelt had effectively halted for the time being the movement in congress for new labor legislation. Possible senate action was deferred indefinitely earlier this week when Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, declined, in view of Mr. Roosevelt's opposition, to press a labor bill he had pending.

In his message last Monday on the cost of living, the President told congress no labor legislation was needed at this time.

By its vote, the committee also left the question of limiting war profits in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee, which now is studying the chief executive's suggestion for a $25,000 limit, after taxes, on individual incomes, and the Treasury's demand for sharply increased levies on excess profits of corporations.

The committee roll was called after Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, author of the bill, solemnly admonished his colleagues that the "American people are going to have something to say about racketeering in war plants and contracts and in labor unions in every congressional district in the nation in the November elections." He reminded them, too, that a majority of the committee four months ago had found that both war contractors and labor unions were realizing "unconscionable" profits from the war, and had recommended that congress have the "courage and strength" to enact legislation.

90 Per Cent Excess Profits Tax Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) A recommendation that congress impose a flat 90 per cent excess profits tax on corporations as a substitute for the present graduated scale, which has a 60 per cent maximum, was made to the House Ways and Means Committee today by congressional and Treasury tax experts.

The recommendation, presented to the committee on the eve of its final vote on new corporation taxes, was reported to contain also a reduction in the present percentages of invested capital used in computing corporation excess profits rates.

Eight per cent is permitted at present on the first $5,000,000 of invested capital and 7 per cent on invested capital above that amount. The recommendation, presented by Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, told newspapermen that by noon tomorrow committee members expected to have completed votes on new normal and surtax rates as well as excess profits rates.

Committee members presently favor a 40 per cent combined normal and surtax, compared with the 31 per cent in the present law, and 55 per cent recommended by the Treasury two months ago.

The excess profits tax recommendation, agreed on by experts of the Treasury and of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation, contemplates retention of the present alternative invested capital and average earnings method of computing the excess profits credit.

400 Atlanta Women Can Keep a Secret

Can 400 women keep a secret? They can, if they are the 400 attached to the Atlanta Aircraft Warning Service. It is here that 400 specially selected Atlanta women, misses and matrons from debs to grandmothers, spend two hours out of each day and then go home with fingers to lips when during that two hours a day is their and Uncle Sam's business.

The work that they do is so important that their place of duty can be considered the nerve center of all the protective services available to a community in times of emergency. For this reason, weeks of preparation and interviewing are behind each one of the 400 women working here.

They are hand-picked women volunteers attached to the Atlanta Aircraft Warning Service and where they go and what they do during that two hours a day is their and Uncle Sam's business.

It's such an important business that one of the requisites of a worker is her ability to keep it a secret, along with her ability to be there every day, to be there on time and to be there for the duration of the war.

Neither snow nor sleet nor a date with a soldier can stay these women in their part of the task of protecting their city from destruction from the air. They must be there and they are there. Attendance and promptness at the filter center since training was started January 9 have been so good that the Atlanta center is said to be one of the most smoothly working outfits in the country.

Hand-picked from a group of 400 women, they are the 400 attached to the Atlanta Aircraft Warning Service. It is here that 400 specially selected Atlanta women, misses and matrons from debs to grandmothers, spend two hours out of each day and then go home with fingers to lips when during that two hours a day is their and Uncle Sam's business.

Must Smash Nazi Army To Last Man, Premier Declares

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

MOSCOW, Friday, May 1.—Premier Joseph Stalin in a May Day order of the day pledged that Russia has no territorial ambitions upon foreign countries and declared that the Soviet's sole aim is to liberate its lands from "the German Fascist blackguards."

Broadcasting his war report to the nation, the premier-defense commissar praised the United States and Great Britain for the increasing assistance he said they were giving Russia against the Germans.

He declared that Russia must "smash the German Fascist army and wipe out the German invader to the last man if they will not surrender."

"No Alternative."
"There is no other alternative way,"

Stalin said that the only thing now lacking was the ability of the Red army men to utilize fully the first-class technique which the Fatherland was putting at their disposal against the enemy.

Then he ordered fighting branches of the Red army to master their weapons to perfection; told army commanders to become leaders in leading their armies to make 1942 the year of the final defeat of the German Fascists; and instructed men and women guerillas to wipe out the staff and equipment of the enemy in the rear and "to spare no bullets against the invaders of our Fatherland."

Stalin told the Soviet Union that the United States and Great Britain are "giving our country more and more military assistance against the Fascist invaders" and that the Red army has forced the Fascists "clear out of a considerable part of Soviet territory."

U. S., British Friendship.
The Russian premier-defense commissar declared that the United States and Britain occupy first place among freedom-loving countries helping Russia against the invaders and said that the Russians are connected with those two allies "by ties of friendship and unity."

It was his first order of the day since February 23, the 24th anniversary of the founding of the Red army, when he confidently declared that the German invader would be cast from Soviet soil in due time, but warned that a "stern struggle" lay ahead.

After more than 10 months of war, he said, Russia has become considerably stronger, the Red army has become more organized and more powerful than it was at the beginning of the conflict, and has "passed from the defense to a successful advance against the enemy troops."

Invader "Suffered Fiasco."
Speaking of the winter war, when the Red army struck unceasingly against the Germans in one of the coldest seasons in decades, Stalin said that the calculation of the invader to rest during the winter and strengthen his

General Motors Cited In Priority Violation

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) The War Production Board today cited General Motors Corporation, Detroit, for alleged violation of priority orders. The order charged that the Termostet Manufacturing Division of General Motors used considerable quantities of scarce chrome steel and aluminum in the manufacture of "bright work," decorative moldings, radiator grills and other body hardware for automobiles, in direct violation of regulations.

A suspension order, effective Saturday, prohibits General Motors from manufacturing any replacement parts for passenger cars, trucks, trailers or buses for a period of three months, except functional replacement parts necessary to keep vehicles on the road.

The board announced also it had investigated complaints "from various sources" that Termostet also was using up large quantities of copper, nickel and zinc in violation of WPB conservation orders.

General Motors was the third major war contractor cited by WPB on charges of priority violations. Court action was instituted last week to enjoin Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation and the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation from continuing alleged improper diversions of steel from military to nonessential civilian uses.

The investigation revealed, WPB said, that the company's use of those metals did not violate any orders then in existence.

The suspension order charged that Termostet used 10,258 pounds of chrome steel—a hard metal highly important to armament production—in the production of decorative moldings between January 7 and March 9 of this year.

The company used 9,239 pounds of primary aluminum and 11,492 pounds of secondary aluminum between January 24 and March 13 in production of the radiator grills and hardware, WPB alleged.

Invalid Girl, Deaf And Blind, Arranges Red Cross Benefit

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(AP)—Bertha Mullin modestly let it be known today that the paralysis that has slowly immobilized virtually all her physical faculties hasn't touched the strength of her spirit.

Bedridden, deaf and blind, that's about all the strength she has left, but she is giving it willingly as her contribution to the nation's war program.

Tomorrow night Bertha, who can move only her lips and tongue, presents 10 of the city's best-known musicians in a concert which she thought up, planned and arranged while lying in the bed to which she was forced 23 years ago.

The entire proceeds, without deductions, go to the Red Cross. "I felt so useless, with my country at war," Bertha explained. "It seemed to me that America needs the help of every one of us, because she must remain forever the sanctuary of all that is kind and good and fine. So I thought and thought, trying to see what I could do.

"Finally the thought came to me: I have a great many friends among artists and musicians. Perhaps I could do my share by organizing a series of concerts. Now we'll see whether it will be a success. If it is, there will be more."

Bertha refused offers of others to aid in the details. She hears conversation only when the speaker places lips against her temple—a radio loudspeaker resting on her chest makes it possible for her to hear recorded and radio music, although voices are inaudible through it. Her mother helped with the correspondence. But:

"I wanted to do as much as I could, because if I just left it up to others I would be back where I started, contributing nothing." Her affliction goes back to 1919, when she was stricken with the flu. She recovered. But her left foot was paralyzed. Gradually the ailment spread throughout her entire body.

Expressions of sympathy bring a cheery laugh. "Fiddlesticks," says Bertha. "I can still hear Beethoven. Isn't that enough?"

Suits May Soon Use Peanut Cloth

Peanut cloth, made from the protein of peanuts, may soon be used in the manufacture of men's suits, W. B. Jester, president of the National Peanut Council, said here yesterday.

"This cloth has the appearance of a good quality of Scotch woolen," he said in a statement on the general versatility of the humble goober. "To the eye and touch it has the appearance of an all-wool material. The wearing quality is practically the same as cloth made from all wool."

DAWN PATROL—Ennie Day has a job of work to do at the filter center before most Atlantans have fumbled sleepily to shut off the alarm clock. She fortifies herself here with a quick cup of coffee.

"I FEEL EVERYONE SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THIS GRAND HERB MEDICINE, POW-O-LIN"

Well-Known, Lifelong Atlanta Resident Declares Pow-o-lin Brought Happy Relief from Indigestion, Achy, Sluggish, Let-Down Feeling. "Pow-o-lin Is the Best Springtime Medicine I Ever Saw," States Mrs. McKinney.

MRS. J. T. McKINNEY.

Throughout all Georgia, grateful, sincere men and women are telling their neighbors and friends of the blessed relief Pow-o-lin gave them. Among the scores of happy Atlanta residents to strongly endorse Pow-o-lin, is Mrs. J. T. McKinney, well-known resident of 173 Gibson St., who declares:

"Indigestion, belching, bloating and a full, stuffy feeling made me almost afraid to eat. What little food I managed to force seemed to give me little strength or energy. I was often stricken with headaches that I felt would nearly drive me crazy. My nerves felt so jumpy I couldn't get much needed sleep. The toxic wastes of constipation made me feel achy, sluggish and let down. I had to take strong laxatives that seemed to tear through me, leaving me feeling weak and tremble. Morning often found me with no will to go on and I felt everything I tried to do was a burden.

"Pow-o-lin gave me grand relief from this distress and I haven't felt so good in a long time. I eat what I want, am relieved of the gas and smothery feeling. My sleep is calm and peaceful and I am relieved of unnatural fatigue and the sluggish, achy feeling that plagued me. If I had known about Pow-o-lin sooner I would have been spared much suffering."

Pow-o-lin is a purely herbal preparation for relief of distress as harassed Mrs. McKinney when due to constipation. Thousands praise it. Pow-o-lin may be obtained at all Jacobs Drug Stores, $1.25 size 98¢. By mail, add 10¢ for postage.—(adv.)

New Orleans Gives Up 1942 Legion Meeting

Surrenders National Convention in Interests of War Effort.

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—(AP) New Orleans today surrendered the 1942 national convention of the American Legion in the interests of the war effort, but immediately started talking about entertaining the "greatest Legion convention ever held"—the first convention after the war is over.

Original plans were to dovetail the convention into a Pan-American fiesta here this fall, but the fiesta already had been blacked out by the war and talk was revived today to go through with both original plans after peace and victory.

Transfer of the convention from New Orleans to a "mid-western gateway city which will put the lightest burden on our transportation facilities" was announced at Legion headquarters in Indianapolis after the New Orleans delegation there relinquished the convention.

Legion leaders here predicted Chicago or Cleveland would entertain the convention as the result of a telegraphic poll to be finished May 9.

Mystery Invention May Spell End Of Rubber Shortage

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—Within a week or two, government experts will crowd into a little glass laboratory not very far from Washington and demand a put-up-or-shut-up showdown from a man who says he can make rubber from natural gas, grain, and either woodpulp or coal.

The turn of events in that laboratory may spell the end of the nation's rubber shortage—or spell D-U-D in large, crestfallen letters.

Anyway, it will be a chapter in one of the war's strangest stories.

Claims Checked.
For weeks, harried by the critical rubber situation, the experts have been checking into the inventor's claims, testing his product, attempting to analyze it, and losing sleep over its mysteries. Not even today will any of the government men pass official judgment.

It's the consensus that there's never been any material quite like it—except rubber itself. Known synthetic rubber reactions are missing, analyses seem to show crude rubber, while actual tests with tires indicate qualities superior to synthetic and equal or superior to crude.

Details Secret.
Scientifically, the experts say, it's almost unbelievable; therefore, they have their fingers crossed. Thus far, the inventor has refused to disclose vital details of his process or permit government representatives to witness actual production.

But, since there's just a chance the inventor can do what he says he can do—make rubber that's better and cheaper than crude, using raw materials with which the United States is amply supplied—the government isn't missing any bets.

On the strength of the long chance, it was agreed that the inventor would build a small model production plant—of glass, for reasons of economy—and arrange for the show-down. To date, the government hasn't spent a dime and hasn't made any commitments, but Uncle Sam's hand is ready in his pocket on this one.

Not Patented.
The inventor hasn't held out for millions of dollars, either. His reasons for moving so cautiously, he says, involve fears of a "run-around," the process has not been patented. He says armed men have ransacked his office and threatened him, and a protective police guard has been assigned to his family.

If the tests in the glass laboratory prove his claim, the government experts add dryly, the inventor and his process will become a military secret so fast his head will swim. Plus armed guards, spy-traps and all the fixin's.

Already Tested.
Here in Washington, using materials supplied by him, officials have supervised the retreading of four tires. All have been placed on taxicabs and now have run about 3,000 miles. Under stress of taxi driving, they have performed notably.

One new tire also was made by the government, and its production left the experts completely at sea since they discovered the material could be used in making the complete tire—sidewalls, as well as tread.

If the process can be proven, officials say, production facilities could be built rapidly, at far less cost than synthetic rubber plants now under construction, while actual manufacturing costs would run far below those of crude rubber.

Axis Plotters Are Expected To Meet Soon

Effort Seen to Unify Nazi, Fascist, Jap War Efforts.

BERN, Switzerland, April 30.—

(AP)—Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and probably the Japanese ambassador to Berlin, Lieutenant General Hiroshi Oshima, are expected to meet soon (if they haven't met already) in an effort to co-ordinate three-power Axis war efforts toward what the Italian press called today "a gigantic, single front."

Bit by bit the picture of new tripartite consultation was filled in by Axis propaganda agencies. Bern, as one of the few neutral spots remaining in Europe, has become a crossroads for information on Axis moves.

The Tokyo newspaper Hochi, according to a Tokyo broadcast, forecast a meeting within a few days of Hitler, Mussolini and Oshima, without indicating where they would get together.

The Berlin radio put out a Munich dispatch reporting Oshima's arrival at that past meeting place of Hitler and Mussolini. But he was there ostensibly to participate in "the week of interstate cultural work."

Oshima recently returned to Germany from Bulgaria where he conferred with the Japanese ambassador to Turkey, presumably canvassing the Axis situation in the Middle East.

The editorial mouthpiece of Italian Fascism, Il Giornale d'Italia, without mentioning Oshima, contributed a hint that the meeting would be one of a series which would parallel "examinations, decisions and fresh resolutions" under the three-power pact.

"We are on the eve of great events, both political and military," said this Rome newspaper which is credited by Virginio Gayda.

Direct reports on the contents of the newest Gayda editorial showed that he wrote that Italy would put greater forces on the eastern (Russian) front while at the same time Germany continues participation in the Mediterranean.

Italian participation in the war on Russia, the editor declared, must be more extensive and with all available means. In this connection, Italians now are busy gathering wool for the troops, suggesting the expectation of a second winter of war on a frigid front.

400 Women In Atlanta Can Keep a Secret

volunteers who signed up at the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office, the women were organized by Mrs. Robert F. Adamson, herself a staff member of the CDVO.

They were trained by 27 soldiers from the signal corps, under the direction of Lieutenant W. H. Baldwin, regional signal officer, and they work under direction of 12 supervisors.

The center functions 24 hours a day, six days a week with women workers from 7:30 o'clock in the morning to 10:30 o'clock at night. At present, soldiers take over the night and Sunday shift, but the women eventually will take over the entire operation, releasing soldiers for other duty.

The filter center is the nerve center for the entire civilian defense set-up—the place where accurate information about all movements in the air is assimilated and passed on.

Good Cross-Section.
Atlanta's feminine contingent in cross section might well be the term applied to those who work at the Center, so varied are their normal occupations. Debutantes—Junior Leaguers—P. T. A. leaders—housewives—grandmothers—file clerks—stenographers—women executives—bookkeepers—heads of personnel departments—all are represented in the 400 group and all are doing a bang-up job.

It is a great measure through the earnestness of these women, and their desire to serve that Atlanta has so splendid a protective service, Army officers say.

And the women continue enthusiastic, though fully aware that if the pending Rogers bill passes congress in its present form, their job of contribution to the war effort will be taken from them and turned over to women in the Army. They realize, though, it would take a long time to get a new setup ready, so they continue their work so Atlanta will not be without protection, it was pointed out.

Supervisors of these forces are the Misses Isabel Johnston, Georgia Pepper, Elizabeth Moate, Neal Callahan, Mrs. Louise Quidor, Mrs. Claude McGinnis, Mrs. H. J. McDargh, Mrs. Dan Plaster, Mrs. Edna Daniels, Mrs. Carolyn Selvers and Mrs. Cecil Fuller.

German-Language Philadelphia Paper Barred From Mail

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Herold, a weekly newspaper printed partly in English but mainly in German, was excluded from the mail temporarily today after the Justice Department accused it of publishing seditious matter.

The Post Office Department cited the newspaper to show cause why its second-class mailing privilege should not be suspended or revoked altogether. A hearing will be held May 14. Meantime, the postmaster at Philadelphia was instructed to refuse to accept for mailing any copies of the Herold until they had been sent to the department's solicitor for a ruling as to their mailability.

The Post Office Department said the Herold is published by William B. Graf & Sons, 1631-33 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia, and that the editor is Otto G. Wilhelm.

The Herold's publishers also operate a printing shop at the same address at which the Herold and "The Free American Deutscher" (Weckruf und Beobachter), an organ of the German-American Bund until the Bund's offices were closed by the Treasury Department following our entry into the war, were printed, the announcement said. Circulation of the Herold was estimated at 10,000 copies.

Christians Says That He'll Quit Pushing Beliefs

Will Stop Advocating Unorthodox Economic Order.

CHATTANOOGA, April 30.—(P)—George W. Christians, Chattanooga engineer-economist charged with sedition, asserted in court today that after his May 13 trial, "win, lose or draw, I'll quit" the advocacy of an unorthodox economic order.

Christians made the assertion during a court hearing on his application for a reduction in his $10,000 bond pending his trial. Federal Judge Leslie Darr ordered the bail lowered to $8,000, but at a late hour today Christians still had not posted the bond necessary for his freedom.

Christians told Judge Darr he had spent a "fortune" to further his "economic liberty movement," and that he considered his trial an opportunity to explain his ideas to the American public. After his trial, he added, "win, lose or draw, I'll quit."

The slight, mustached engineer has advocated the establishment of an economic order in which labor would replace gold as the monetary standard.

John M. Walker Elected Atlanta Diocese Bishop

southern part of the state is known as the diocese of Georgia and includes Augusta and Savannah.

A deadlock in the voting was broken when two withdrew on the ninth ballot. Dr. Walker obtained a majority on the twelfth ballot and then was declared unanimous choice by a voice vote.

The Rev. Theodore S. Will, rector of Atlanta's All Saints church, and the Rev. David Cady Wright Jr., of Emanuel church, then threw their support to Dr. Walker yesterday morning when he gained a lead in the voting.

On the final ballot, Dr. Walker led the Rev. Elwood L. Haines, of Louisville, Ky., with 19 clerical and 14 2-3 lay votes to the Rev. Mr. Haines' 8 clerical and 9 1/4 lay votes. In this connection, it was pointed out Episcopal rules require a majority of both clerical and lay votes for election.

Close With Prayer.

The council also balloted Wednesday night, defeated an attempt to defer the vote to another meeting and then reached agreement shortly after noon yesterday. The meeting then closed with a prayer. Formal consecration of the bishop is to be made soon, it was announced. Dr. Walker will be consecrated by three bishops to be chosen by himself and a committee within the next two to three months. The consecration, it was said, probably will take place at the new bishop's home church of St. Luke's.

Dr. Walker is a native of Macon and is 53 years old. He holds an A. B. degree from the University of Georgia, a B. D. and D. D. degree from the University of the South (Sewanee, Tenn.). At Georgia he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic fraternity. He formerly was a general missionary for the diocese of Georgia.

Dr. Walker's previous pastorates include St. Paul's church at Albany, Ga., and St. Peter's church at Charlotte, N. C.

In 1939, Dr. Walker and his wife and their two children spent August in England. Fears for their safety were felt in Atlanta when war broke out, but these were allayed by a letter from him in early September of that year.

Mrs. Walker is the former Miss Julia Benedict, of Athens. Dr. Walker's brother, Roosevelt Walker, is a professor at the University of Georgia. His daughter is Mrs. Blake Newton, of Richmond, Va. His son, John Moore Walker Jr., is a student at Georgia Tech.

Rehearsing Asked In 'Cola' Suit

WILMINGTON, Del., April 30.—(P)—The Coca-Cola Company today petitioned Chancellor W. H. Harrington for a rehearing of its suit against the Nehi Corporation, manufacturers of Royal Crown Cola, which was dismissed on April 1 on the grounds that the word "cola" was a generic term and that the Coca-Cola Company did not have the sole right to use of it.

Coca-Cola, through its attorneys, asked that the dismissal decree be vacated and a decree be entered in conformity with its original request asking that Nehi be restrained from using the word "cola."

Phone Rings, Doorbell Jangles As Friends Felicitate Walker

By ROLFE EDMONDSON.

There was one busy man in Atlanta last night.

With telephones ringing, doorbells jangling, he was jumping from one end of his home to the other.

But with all the hustle and bustle, he had good help, for his wife, acting in the role of liaison officer, was always in the right place, and always doing the right thing at the right time.

The busy man was Dr. John Moore Walker, B. D., D. D., who yesterday was elected bishop of the Diocese of Atlanta of the Episcopal church. The phone, ringing almost constantly, was bringing congratulatory messages from his friends in St. Luke's parish, the church he has served for more than 10 years, while at the front door were other friends calling in person, and messenger boys from friends out of the city.

Able Assistance.

Without the able assistance of Mrs. Walker, the newly named bishop would have found it extremely difficult to handle the rush, and even with her help, Dr. Walker found it a strenuous evening, for as the news spread generally, the crowd of well-wishers grew larger and the telephone looked on as a source of new experiences tonight.

Dr. Walker said, as he responded to greetings of several callers.

"I am not accustomed to all this attention," he said. "Of course, I have received considerable attention at church receptions shortly after accepting a call to a new parish, but there I was meeting new people. Here it's different. This is not a formal reception, and all the callers are friends—old friends and acquaintances with whom I have been in daily contact. That makes it different."

Dr. Walker and his wife returned from Rome late yesterday afternoon to find the telephone ringing.

Immediately after their arrival, reporters and photographers arrived, and while they were posing for pictures, answering reporters' questions and the phone, the friends began to arrive in person.

New Experiences.

"Yes, and here's another new experience for me," he said when a photographer asked him to pose with Mrs. Walker for a picture.

"This is the first time we have ever been photographed together. You know I am camera shy. I make a terrible picture. However, I hope this one turns out well, for I would like to have one of the wife and me together."

Mrs. Walker, nestling close to her husband, grabbed up her knitting, taking advantage of the brief pause to add a few more stitches to the garment she had been working on during the long hours while clergymen and laymen were engaged in casting their ballots to elect a bishop to succeed the late Right Rev. H. J. Mikkil, served as bishop of the Atlanta diocese for more than 25 years.

"Knitting seems to be Mrs. Walker's hobby," Dr. Walker said as the photographer searched through his bag for an elusive flash light bulb.

"What is your hobby, Doctor?" he was asked.

"I have none," was the immediate reply.

"What? No golf? tennis? or anything like that?"

"No, I never cared for games."

"Then what do you do for diversion?" a reporter asked.

Detective Stories.

"For diversion I read detective stories, and occasionally, but not often, I attend a movie."

"All of my time is taken up in church activities and in study. Whenever I have a spare moment, I'll pick up a detective story and read it, but when I get through reading it I don't know what I have read. It goes right through my head. I don't remember the name of a single detective story I have ever read, neither do I know the name of any author of one of the stories."

"I have read the thing, and it has relaxed me, and then I am ready for my serious reading—books on history, theology, philosophy and the thousand and one other things a minister must study and learn."

"A man in the ministry is kept busy all the time. He should not go into the ministry for a career, but should enter it to work."

"As for myself, I never had any particular desire to be a bishop. It's a call to service, and I accept the call as the next thing I am to do in this life."

Dr. Walker, in explaining it will be some 80 or 90 days before his election is ratified by the standing committee of the Episcopal church, a committee comprising all the bishops in the country, said he will remain as rector of St. Luke's until the election is confirmed.

Labor Relations Policy Formed By the C. of C. Young Harris Accepts Lance Resignation

Resolution at Chicago Meeting Advocates Open Shop.

CHICAGO, April 30.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States established its labor relations policy tonight in a resolution advocating the open shop and suspension of all "artificial limitations upon hours of work" during the war.

An amendment to the resolution, introduced by Sterling Morton, of Chicago, secretary of the Morton Salt Company, asserted: "There should be immediate legislation by the federal congress to protect the right to work."

As adopted at the closing session of the Chamber's 30th annual meeting, the labor relations set forth in part:

"Until recent years the right to work has not been seriously challenged in this country, but on this right there have now been successive encroachments that concern every American in the face of national peril, these encroachments have impeded maximum war production. Neither labor nor management has a right to promote its respective interests at the expense of the general welfare."

Right To Work.

"The right to obtain employment, and to remain in employment should not be conditioned upon membership, or nonmembership in any organization, or upon payment to any one."

"The right to strike should never exist against government—federal, state or local. When the nation is at war the national interest would be served if the exercise of the right were voluntarily suspended by all workers."

This last paragraph occasioned one of the several debates which preceded passage of the resolution. Fitzgerald Hall, of Nashville, Tenn., a director of the chamber and president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, objected to it because he said it recognized "the right to strike."

"I don't believe there is a right to strike—even against private industry," Hall said. "I'm against it."

Hawkes Speaks.

"You don't mean a man hasn't the right to strike in my business if he wants to?" asked Albert W. Hawkes, president of the chamber and a member of the War Labor Board.

"It depends upon the way he strikes," Hall declared, amid a smattering of applause from the delegates.

Another section of the resolution declared: "Artificial limitations upon hours of work, whether imposed by statute with penalties for employers or by labor organizations with penalties for employees, should by law be suspended during the war."

The labor relations resolution and one concerning price control were the only ones which evoked special discussion from the floor.

In its final form, the resolution advocated amendment of the price control act to include "all elements which control prices, and this includes salaries and wages."

Meanwhile, Eric A. Johnston, Spokane, Wash., business executive, was elected president of the chamber at the close of the annual meeting, succeeding Hawkes.

Board Expresses Regret at Decision of Educator.

The board of trustees of Young Harris College, at a special meeting held yesterday, accepted the resignation of Dr. Thomas Jackson Lance as president of the school, and adopted a resolution emphasizing regret at his resignation and recommending to the board that he be elected to continuous service on the board.

His successor has not been chosen but a committee with Dr. W. T. Hamby, of Decatur, as chairman, was named to recommend a successor.

The resolution, signed by Walter H. Rich, J. W. O. McKibben and Charles S. Reid, read, in part: "In making this grateful acknowledgement of Dr. Lance's services to the institution and to education in the state, and emphasizing the deep regret with which his resignation as president of the college be accepted, we extend him our deep affection and high esteem and our good wishes to follow him through a continuing career of distinction."

"Desiring to retain the benefit of his counsel and vision, we recommend to the board of trustees that he be elected at the November meeting to continuous service on the board."

commend to the board of trustees that he be elected at the November meeting to continuous service on the board.

The resolution also praised the courage and foresight of Dr. Lance, who, while working under handicaps, elevated the school to a higher accredited standing and substantially enlarged the plant and equipment.

Dr. Lance had served as president of Young Harris since the death of the late Dr. Joseph A. Sharp, former president, in 1930.

Eastman Sees 'Staggering' as Traffic Relief

Believes Plan Will Increase Capacity of Transit Vehicles.

Traffic regulations favoring the movement of mass transit vehicles, instead of automobiles, were suggested yesterday in conjunction with "staggered hours" to relieve overcrowded conditions of Atlanta transportation.

The suggestions were sent by Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, to the Georgia Power Company as a "statement of policy."

"A carefully prepared plan of staggering working, store and office hours," Eastman said, "offers by far the greatest opportunity for increasing the carrying capacity of existing transit vehicles."

"The communities where the number of buses required in the rush hours can be reduced by opening schools at a later hour, public officials and transit operators should co-operate to attain this objective," he added.

The policies were determined mainly by "the desperate need for conserving all rubber now in our possession."

W. R. Pollard, transportation manager of the power company, said the company would co-operate fully, adding that it previously had been made clear that cities like Atlanta may expect to obtain new equipment only after every effort has been made to get the fullest use of the equipment on hand.

'Second Front' Candidates Win English Ballots

Two Independents Sent to Commons With Orders for Action.

LONDON, April 30.—(AP)—Voters in the industrial midlands and west of England, shaken from established party alignments by the repeated shocks of war, sent two independent representatives to the house of commons today with orders to force the government into opening a second front and winning the war this year.

Against government candidates, W. J. Brown, secretary of the Civil Service Clerical Association, won a by-election at Rugby and W. L. Reakers, a former mayor, was elected at Wallasey, in the Merseyside district near Birkenhead and Liverpool.

Their victories, added to that last month at Grantham of W. D. Randall over another government candidate, convinced many political observers that considerable sections of the electorate are disgruntled over the progress of the war.

Independent Revolt.
The election results represented an independent revolt against the government's desire for a wartime political truce.

Moreover Brown, declaring he won "because the people are sick and tired of the party machines which took us into war unprepared and have led us from disaster to disaster since," said: "My election is a call to the government to settle its political differences with Russia, to achieve unity of strategy and a command to open a second front and win victory this year."

He defeated Colonel Sir Claude Holbrook, the government's choice, by 679 votes. At Wallasey, Reakers defeated John Pennington, the government candidate, by more than 6,000 votes, with Major L. H. Cripps, brother of Sir Stafford Cripps, the prime minister's parliamentary deputy, a poor third.

Trades Union Defeat.
The Conservative party was not the only loser in the two elections. Both government candidates were backed by trades union leaders, to whom such industrial areas once listened carefully.

Those and other signposts point toward a national desire to pump new blood and new ideals into a commons which was elected to deal with the almost forgotten "Italian crisis" of the winter of 1935-36.

There is anger at the progress of the war, a widespread feeling that most of the present cabinet must go and—some political observers say—a growing belief that if Prime Minister Churchill does not follow the wishes of commons and the people in certain matters he, too, will have trouble staying in office.

Foremost is the clamor for a second front. This movement started well to the left but has since moved to the right with Lord Beaverbrook and his three powerful newspapers backing the idea.

Churchill's Strategy Hit.
There also is considerable criticism of Churchill's direction of war strategy, and tonight a sharp attack on the prime minister appeared in the Leftist Weekly Tribune, edited by Aneurin Bevan, one of the government's most implacable commons critics.

The article, entitled "Why Churchill?" was written by Thomas Raisboro. It charged:

"1. It was Churchill, then first lord of the admiralty, who by his wireless orders sent British warships off on fool's errands to the north while German warships (in April of 1940) forced the South Norway fjords."

"2. It was Churchill who held back British admirals from breaking into Trondheim while there was still time to eject the newly landed Germans."

War Bonds Boom On Manila Bay

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) They're still buying American war bonds on Manila bay.

"United States Navy personnel Manila bay area have purchased war bonds totaling $407,000 to date. Amount will presently exceed $500,000."

SWASTIKAS IN ARGENTINA.

BUENOS AIRES, April 30.—(AP) Swastika stickers appeared mysteriously during the night on posters advertising a mass meeting tomorrow in favor of the neutrality policy of Acting President Ramon S. Castillo. The stickers were applied to the forehead of a likeness of Manuel Fresco, former governor of Buenos Aires province, who is scheduled to speak, and whom many Argentines regard as pro-totalitarian.

2-Century-Old Gift To Lee of Virginia Returned to Queen

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—In a simple but impressive ceremony the two-century-old gift by a British Queen to Thomas Lee, of Virginia, to help him rebuild his home, destroyed by criminals, was returned—with interest—to Britain's present Queen today for use in restoring homes "destroyed by the criminals of today."

Japs Occupy Lashio and Cut Burma Road

Lines for other fronts because new lines already had been arranged under orders of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Both the Chinese and British, he said, would fight on until the last in Burma.

An unknown quantity of lease-lend supplies which could not be sent northward toward China along the Burma Road before Lashio's collapse had been put to the torch; the entire city was reported a core of fire.

On the Allied right, the British position below Mandalay was left untenable and it was believed General Harold Alexander undoubtedly was falling back to the north along the Irrawaddy river, both to protect the approaches to India and to guard the new and difficult supply routes now being constructed between China and India as alternatives to the lost Burma Road.

Thus two isolated Allied fronts had by necessity been formed and the chief hope remaining in Allied quarters was that a reunion might be later effected by British counterattacks from the northwest and Chinese counterattacks from the northeast.

The British held some hope for material reinforcements when the new India-China routes are completed; the Chinese still had the hope that part of the Burma Road northeast of Lashio to the Chinese frontier.

Far below the main battle area about Lashio, a small Chinese force was attacking to the east from the region of Taunggyi against the enemy's rear communications but it was pointed out by a Chinese spokesman that so fluid was the situation and so powerful were the enemy forces that this thrust could not be depended upon to make any material change.

Another Chinese force was engaging rearward Japanese forces about Pyawbwe, 85 miles south of Mandalay.

Mobile Warfare Seen.

The Chinese spokesman said the Chinese would be forced to abandon positional warfare but would resort to mobile war "to carry out their mission in Burma."

"I wish solemnly to state that whatever the developments until the enemy is driven out Chinese troops will remain in Burma and continue their resistance," he said. "This not only is the determination of the high command but of every Chinese officer and man now fighting in Burma."

"Whether the Japanese rapid thrust towards Lashio and Hsipaw is a brilliant military move or becomes a dismal failure will be known in two days' time," the spokesman said.

"If the Japanese succeed in maintaining supplies to these flying columns, the situation in Burma naturally would be serious for the Chinese troops, since Japanese columns now at Lashio and Hsipaw can continue to advance northwards, cutting off first the Chinese forces in Burma from China and second Chinese land communications with India by way of Upper Burma. Or they could turn westward for the purpose of encircling Chinese forces at present fighting on the Mandalay and Irrawaddy fronts."

CHINESE GUERRILLAS ACT. CHUNGKING, April 30.—(AP)—Chinese guerrillas were reported today to have destroyed a 200-foot concrete and steel bridge near Saratsi station on the Peiping-Suiyuan railway.

20 Jap Planes Are Destroyed On Lae Field

Large Fires Started in Daily Attack on Invasion Bases.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 30.—(AP)—Twenty planes on the ground at the Japanese air base at Lae, New Guinea, were destroyed or damaged by Allied bombers yesterday, the Allied command announced today.

A headquarters communiqué also said large fires were started at Lae, raided almost daily by Allied airmen who are trying to break up Japan's invasion forces in this area.

Japanese planes attacked Port Moresby, New Guinea, three times yesterday but did only minor damage.

On Tuesday, a report from an advanced Allied base disclosed, one Royal Australian Air Force flyer, courageously braving an escorting force of 14 Ziv fighters, broke into a formation of eight Japanese bombers over Port Moresby and scored a hit on one bomber.

The Japanese base at Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, was attacked yesterday by Allied flyers, but the raid was described as relatively light.

In the Philippines, the communiqué said, the Japanese have landed reinforcements from five transports at Parang on the west coast of Mindanao Island. (The Tokyo radio reported the occupation of both Parang and nearby Cotabato.)

The guns of American forts in Manila bay silenced three batteries and destroyed a truck column on the Luzon shore in an exchange of fire with the Japanese.

Corregidor itself went through heavy bombing yesterday and surrounding fortified islands were extensively shelled.

No Territorial Claims, Stalin Tells Russians

defense line "has suffered a fiasco."

Stalin said that the war has affected all aspects of Russia's life and that the working people of the country "in consideration of the conditions of war have refused to take their holiday rest in order to give this day over to energetic work for the defense of our Fatherland."

"This means that the front and rear form a united and inseparable military front in our country that is ready to overcome all difficulties in the war to victory over the enemy."

The Russian premier-defense commissar charged that Adolf Hitler, Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Heinrich Himmler and other rulers of present-day Germany "are watchdogs of the German bankers, placing the interests of the latter above all other interests."

"The German army," he added, "in the hands of these masters is a blind weapon called upon to spill their own and other people's blood and cripple themselves and others not for the sake of the interests of Germany, but for the enrichment of German bankers and plutocrats."

Reds Reach Main German Lines.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The German radio quoted a high command spokesman last night as saying that "a Soviet force has reached the main German line" north of Kerch peninsula of the Crimea.

Russian reports said there were wholesale guerrilla activities in mountainous and woody sections of the Crimea. The guerrillas were said to have engaged two Rumanian forces in a forest battle, killing 800 invaders.

The regular midnight Soviet communiqué said there were no substantial changes on the front, but announced the sinking of a 10,000-ton Nazi transport in the Barents sea, and a 31-to-11 advantage in aerial combats during Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a Russian tank brigade fighting on the Kalinin front destroyed 168 Axis tanks and annihilated more than 14,000 officers and men in fierce fighting, it was officially reported early today by the Moscow radio.

The radio said the single tank brigade also destroyed 29 planes, many trucks, machine guns, mortars and armored cars. It declared that 13,000 officers and men were annihilated in the earlier fighting and that in the last few days tanks broke through to the German rear and killed about 1,000 more troops.

The Kalinin front, scene of some of the bloodiest fighting of the entire war, with the Russians reporting German casualties in the thousands at frequent intervals, is northwest of Moscow.

Earlier the Moscow radio broadcast reports that the Red army fighting on an unspecified sector of the central front, just below the Kalinin area, had sent German troops reeling back to the west after many hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

"Major Victory" Claimed. The Russian radio claimed that the Red army had scored a "major victory"—but the German radio countered with a declaration that repeated Russian attacks on the central front were frustrated.

A Reuters dispatch from Kuibyshev, Russia's alternate capital, quoted Major General M. Zakharov as writing that persistent Soviet attacks on the Kalinin front between Smolensk and Leningrad have so confused the Germans that they have wrecked Nazi plans for a spring offensive. Red Star also revealed for the

Navy's First Inland-Built Sub Launched in Lake Michigan

MANITOWOC, Wis., April 30.—(AP)—In this Lake Michigan port, nearly a thousand miles from salt water, the first Navy submarine ever built on inland waters was launched today, weeks ahead of schedule.

Middle western industry long has produced parts for undersea craft, but until the 1,500-ton type submarine Peto splashed into the Manitowoc river construction of such war vessels was confined to tidewater plants.

Cities held by the Germans include Slutsk, 30 miles southeast of Leningrad near the Moscow-Leningrad railroad and 160 miles west of Tikhvin, where the Russians began their winter drive in that area, and Krasnogvardeisk, 35 miles south of Leningrad, on the road to Tallinn, Estonia.

Meanwhile, the Russians said their troops were continuing non-stop harassing tactics from the Finnish front to the Black sea. Reports from all along the battle line indicated that the Soviets were increasing their grip on tactical positions and were inflicting mounting losses in men, tanks and planes on the invaders.

The Germans have said that "strong tank thrusts" were made by the Soviets around Orel, 200

From Helsinki came reports of fierce Russian attacks in eastern Karelia. These were said to be supported by artillery.

Dispatches from the fighting around outflanked Kursk, 280 miles south of Moscow, suggested that the German positions there were extremely precarious.

U. S. To Begin New Financing Policy Monday

To Raise an Indefinite Amount, Probably Around 2 Billion.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced today that the Treasury would begin a new financing policy Monday designed to raise an indefinite amount, but probably in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000 during May.

The program was divided into three steps, as follows:

1. The Treasury will offer for sale a $1,250,000,000 issue of the ordinary type of government bonds. They will bear 2 per cent interest and have a "medium maturity," which was understood to mean approximately 10 years. The bonds are designed primarily for sale to banks.

2. The Treasury will offer an indefinite amount of a new type of registered bonds, bearing 2 1/2 per cent interest, and having a "long term" maturity, believed to be between 20 and 25 years. The Treasury will sell as many of this type of bonds as are asked for during the period in which the offer is open, probably about two weeks. This security is designed primarily for insurance com-

First 'Quota Sales' Of War Bonds Launched by U. S.

In DeKalb, 5,000 members of the AWWF will knock on doors to secure pledges totaling $46,800.

Departing from the practice of simply making general appeals for bond purchases, the Treasury set every county in the country a definite minimum quota for May. The total compares with monthly average sales of $437,951,243 between July, 1941, and January, 1942, inclusive. The campaign, in compliance with President Roosevelt's "share the war" program, is the first step in efforts to boost monthly war bond sales to $1,000,000,000 beginning in July. The June quotas will be $800,000,000.

To launch the new quota drive, the Treasury enlisted all of the 870 radio stations in the country as well as newspapers and magazines and billboards to carry the message that "your quota is 10 per cent."

This referred to the suggestion of the Treasury that everyone try to put 10 per cent of his regular pay check into war bonds.

As the campaign warms up, more pretentious spectacles are planned. For instance, Gary, Ind., will start off tomorrow with a war bond parade led by Film Actress Dorothy Lamour and Army and Navy forces.

Much Ballyhoo. Similar parades and rallies in the following days include events May 5 at Cleveland and Chattanooga. The same night, New Orleans will have a community sing for the benefit of war bonds.

Sports figures including Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and political leaders, including Wendell Willkie, also will make appearances in various cities in behalf of the campaign.

Committees in the various counties have been asked to erect giant thermometers in public places to illustrate progress toward meeting quotas. Prepared articles have been sent out to newspapers illustrating the types of war weapons that will be purchased with the proceeds of the bonds. Special music and speeches have been lined up for both local and network radio programs.

Possibilities Included. In the continental United States, every state except sparsely settled Nevada had a quota of more than $1,000,000 for May. New York led the list with a goal of $125,000,000. Nevada's quota was $580,600. Quotas were allotted, too, to Alaska, Hawaii, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

There was no quota for Corregidor island, but the Navy sent word to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today that its forces in the Manila bay area had bought $407,000 worth, and were still buying.

The Treasury estimated that more than 500,000 persons would participate in promoting the campaign, nearly all of them unpaid volunteers. In some states, committees and women will go from house to house urging people to sign pledges to buy bonds, but not actually taking sales orders.

Sugar Ration Registration Is Monday

Schools To Have Holiday So Buildings Can Be Used.

The general public will receive its first lesson in wartime rationing Monday when millions of Americans will go to school houses near their homes to secure registration books entitling them to their share of sugar.

Atlantans and Fulton county consumers will register at elementary schools in their neighborhoods. City and county school authorities have declared a holiday for Monday and urged consumers to register on that day, although registration will continue through Thursday.

County School Superintendent Jere A. Wells said yesterday that registration hours in county elementary schools on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday would be from 3 o'clock to 6.

Ivan Allen, chief of the Georgia Sugar Rationing Administration, has distributed through his office 3,000,000 rationing books for Georgians, one for every man, woman and child in the state.

Any mother or father can obtain books for each member of a family. Allen yesterday called particular attention to a change in the regulations.

A person may not secure books for servants, even if they take three meals per day at their employer's home. Servants must register for themselves and their families. Those who eat at their place of employment should turn their rationing book over to their employer to purchase sugar for them.

Allen pointed out rationing books may become a person's most valuable possession and that every person should by all means obtain one. If and when other foods grow scarce, he said, it is probable that the same books will be used for rationing them.

Registrants will be allowed two pounds of sugar for each book without any coupons being detached. Equivalent coupons will be detached for all above that quantity.

Give the Boys Big Sendoff, Stimson Urges

Wants Flags, Bands at Station When Troop Trains Roll.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) Recruits departing for training camps should receive send-offs from the homefolks in the form of parades and community demonstrations, Secretary of War Stimson said today.

The departure of selective service groups has been marked with considerably less public display in this war than was the case in 1917-18, Stimson said, and War Department officials have been "very sorry" that was true.

Men who have been in the Army for several months have developed a high morale, the secretary said, but the moment when a young man leaves civil life to become a soldier, with the knowledge of difficulties and danger ahead of him, is a difficult one and is the time for his friends "to show that we are proud of him."

"We in the War Department favor very strongly any demonstration of that feeling to him," Stimson said.

Junior League Eager To Help Win the War

Cherished Social Welfare Projects Must Take Back Seat.

KANSAS CITY, April 30.—(AP) The Junior League furrowed her pretty little brow and looked the war right in the face today.

It was a hard thing to do, in a way—what with all her cherished social welfare projects.

But she—that is 800 delegates to the twenty-second annual conference of the Junior Leagues of America—decided that if it came to a tug for time between community projects and those for the war the war would get the nod in no uncertain terms.

Take Much Time. And reports from Newark, from Milwaukee, from Oakland, from Montreal indicated that the complexities of Red Cross and civilian defense work already were taking too much of the Junior Leagues' time for much community service.

Five panel discussions on community service raised a number of points, brought much comment. Should, for instance, Mexico City sacrifice its flourishing project for the blind in order to give full aid to the Red Cross?

"We have to remember that the emergency is temporary," interjected a Springfield (Mass.) delegate. "We mustn't entirely drop our social welfare work, which always will be needed."

"But the Red Cross isn't temporary," replied a pretty delegate from Toledo, Ohio. "The home service department, for instance, is decidedly a permanent agency."

Eager To Help. Mrs. Linville K. Martin, of Winston-Salem, N. C., president-elect, and Mrs. George V. Ferguson, of Winnipeg, summed up the attitude of the 36,000 members in this country, Canada and Mexico by saying they were eager to pitch in and do whatever they could to help win the war.

Mrs. Martin said it would not be a concerted drive by the Junior Leagues as an association, but that the members would help in the war effort where their communities seemed to need their help the most.

Mrs. Ferguson said one of the services would be care of children whose mothers were in war industry.

Famed Editor Raps 'Snob' Ban Against Privates Dating Nurses

RALEIGH, N. C., April 30.—(AP) Josephus Daniels, who as Secretary of the Navy in the first World War upset tradition by banning liquor from fighting ships, has gone gunning for another unwritten law of the armed forces.

This time it's an Army tradition that he's lambasting—the unwritten law forbidding buck privates to have dates with nurses who are commissioned as second lieutenants.

This "rotten tradition stinks," the Raleigh editor and former ambassador to Mexico wrote in his newspaper, the News and Observer.

In order to get his facts straight before firing his editorial blast, Daniels wrote Secretary of War Stimson for a copy of the antidating regulation, if such a regulation existed. The reply came from Colonel John A. Rogers, executive officer of the Medical Corps.

Colonel Rogers said that there was no written regulation, but that there was an unwritten law "based on the relationship of superiors toward subordinates as pertaining to commissioned officers of the Army and is solely a matter of discipline which, to be maintained on duty, cannot be broken down off duty."

That was enough for Daniels. If enlisted men are good enough to fight and die for their country, he wrote, they ought to be good enough to associate with generals or with nurses.

The reason that there is no written regulation on the subject, he charged, is that no general or secretary of war would have the nerve to sign his name to such "snobbery."

"Off duty, a private and colonel either have the equal right of social foregatherings or our talk of a 'war for democracy' is baloney," Daniels continued.

"The bunk that such snobbery promotes discipline is absurd. Off duty men are equals. On duty the orders of ranking officers must be obeyed, and all privates are glad to render such obedience. They resent—and so does every red-blooded American—the so-called unwritten law of denial of fundamental rights."

Dear Uncle Sam:

Heck, you know every two-fisted Yank would give his shirt to win this war. But as the high-brows would say, that's a mere figure of speech. The gang writing this letter is really kicking in for you, Uncle—and no monkey business. We're giving you our pants!

That's no gag! When you ordered "no more 2 trouser suits for the duration", you were talking straight at us—the biggest civilian army in this country. We're the fellows who wear Bond Clothes. And we're doggone chesty that you've called us to the colors.

Of course, Uncle Sam, every one knows that a suit with two trousers wears lots longer. And we mean lots, too! That Hooper-Holmes Survey in your top desk drawer says its 77%. Now that's not chicken feed, when it comes to saving wool for tomorrow. But we know the way things are going, tomorrow may be too late.

Down in Washington, you're saying this war can be won or lost right now—in 1942.

You want wool and cloth today! Well, you're 100% right, Uncle Sam. Our sons, and brothers, and buddies in the armed forces come first. So if it's our pants you want, take 'em. We can wait!

If you say we can't get two trousers with our Bond suits for the duration—well, we'll take 'em with one pair of jeans and still be ahead on the deal. That bunch at Bond's have always been square shooters, and we're not going to forget it.

Now, with this war-time set-up, we hear Bond's are going to town with prices that'll bat the ears off anything they've ever done. How do you like that?

So here's to you, Uncle Sam. May those striped breeches of yours flap in the breeze as we start the big parade to Berlin and Tokio.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 1, 1942.

Are You Registered?

Saturday, tomorrow, is the final day on which Georgians can register for the coming primaries to nominate state and county officials. Unless the citizen is registered at his county courthouse by the close of business tomorrow he cannot vote in this year's elections. He will, in so far as the conduct of his public affairs is concerned, be deprived of citizenship—through no one's fault save his own.

There are many things that need correcting in the conduct of both county and state affairs. Many things have been done in the past couple of years that reflect no credit upon the state of Georgia. The name of Georgia has, by these acts, been made a laughing stock and a byword of demagoguery in other parts of the land.

Those of us who are so little concerned they cannot take the little trouble involved in registration and in voting will have no right to resent any future actions of properly elected officials.

The lines of contest for office are already forming. There are candidates, some seeking re-election, others asking the office for the first time, we know by their past record are unfit to properly represent the potentially great state of Georgia.

There are candidates for county office who have, in the past, permitted conditions to arise which cost the taxpayers dearly. The only way to remedy evil conditions is to make sure, by your votes, that men who will serve the people in preference to the politicians are placed in office.

It is more important today than ever before that the right men be elected to office. Under war conditions there is a new and tremendous responsibility placed upon leaders in local governments. State laws which impede the war program, for instance, must be abrogated or held in abeyance for the duration. State barriers to free and united effort by the entire nation must be swept aside.

Economies in government, as economies in private life, must cut deep, right down to the bedrock of unavoidable necessity, if the cost of the war is to be met and disastrous inflation avoided. There must be no parasites upon the public pay rolls, there must be no spending of the public money on useless jobs, non-essential projects or excessive costs of any type.

All essential public services must be maintained. Some, as public health and social welfare, should be enlarged. But there is so much waste in the handling of public money today that the properly qualified officials can provide all these needs and still reduce, in large total, the annual budget of local governments.

The responsibility is yours. By your vote will be decided the issue whether Georgia, and the counties of Georgia, are to do their proper part in fighting the war, or whether they are to be impeded and handicapped by continuance of factional and personal politics. And by unnecessary waste of the people's money.

Register, today or tomorrow.

Was It Worth It?

Coke oven workers at the Cambridge works of the Bethlehem Steel Company this week staged a two-day walkout. Obeying the letter of the promise by Phillip Murray, head of the CIO, to President Roosevelt, that there shall be no strikes in war industry, the union said it was an "unauthorized walkout," but nevertheless supported it. A technicality without a difference.

After two days the men went back to work, on the assurance their demand for a 12 1/2 cent hourly increase in wages would be given priority over all cases before the War Labor Board.

The question arises, if, even from the standpoint of the men themselves, their walkout was worth what it cost.

It cost 3,000 tons of steel less for America's war effort. Just as lost time can never be recovered, so these 3,000 tons are gone forever.

It cost, also, a lot of public confidence in organized labor. If the promise of "no strikes" can be avoided by simply changing wording and calling a mass cessation of work an "unauthorized walkout," what value can the nation, and the administration at Washington, place upon any promises made by organized labor?

Even though the men gain their wage rate increase, it is to be doubted if the individual worker will consider it worth the price paid.

$25,000 a Year

One of the most puzzling problems ever placed before the country is to be found in the suggestion, made by President Roosevelt in his anti-inflation program, that a top limit of $25,000 be placed on annual incomes for individuals or families in the United States.

There can be little doubt that 99 per cent of Americans now receiving more than that sum would be quite willing to accept the proposed limit if it involved only direct living expenditures. There is no hardship for anyone in an income of approximately $500 per week.

However, if, by net income of $25,000, is meant total funds for all purposes, the repercussions from such a move will work far more disastrously against the average citizen, against the nation as a whole, than against the comparatively few wealthy persons directly affected.

For the man who has been spending an income higher than this has contracted obligations which he would have to void if his income were reduced.

In the large cities of the nation there are, for instance, many costly residences and apartments which are rented for more than $25,000 a year. A large proportion of these are financed by insurance money. Thus, when tenants are forced to abandon leases, to surrender property to mortgage holders, the effect would be felt largely by the man of smaller income whose life insurance investment would be weakened by the loss of such real estate investments.

Large income earners have been the chief supporters of such social benefits to all as are found in the agencies which depend for maintenance on the Community Chest. Charities have received the bulk of their financial support for the wealthy. Tens of thousands of workers are, directly or indirectly, dependent upon the spendings of the high-income earners.

Undoubtedly application of such an income limitation would react far more painfully upon the entire economic fabric of the nation and the financial little man, than upon the big income group itself. For, once adjustment is made, there is no hardship whatsoever in living upon $25,000 a year. But there is a lot of hardship to the average people in the corollaries and aftermath of those adjustments.

Incidentally, if $25,000 is to be the limit, how about the income of President Roosevelt himself? He gets $75,000 a year as President, in addition to his private income from investments and property holdings.

The Old Routine

The peace offensive has been launched. It is the same old offensive, pulled out of the Axis "peace" file and dusted off for its annual spring showing.

In substance it provides that Great Britain and the United States recognize German hegemony in Europe; that these countries support Germany against Russia and that Germany in turn support these nations against Japan; that Germany take over French, Dutch and Belgian colonial possessions.

They are advanced in the same name, that of Herman Goering.

They seek to split the United Nations. It is suggested to Great Britain that the United States and Russia will "take over" the empire.

The offensive comes as no surprise. It makes its appearance as regularly as the flowers throw out their spring blossoms. It generally is followed by a terrific offensive at whatever point the Germans feel most timely. It is accompanied, always, by dire threats of invasion of Great Britain. Thus far, Britain stands.

So let no person be fooled by the maneuvering coming out of Hitler-dominated Europe.

Georgia Editors Say:

COMPROMISE PLAN
(From The Tifton Gazette.)

Why not a compromise between the farmers and union labor? The unions to retain their 40-hour week and time and a half for overtime. The farmer to receive price and a half for one-sixth of his production, representing the portion produced through the sixth day of work each week. Or, better still, if the farmer works 10 or 12 hours per day, six days per week, allow him price and a half for one-third to one-fourth of his production. And, since the farmer is manufacturer as well as worker, allow him an additional 10 per cent profit on his costs.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

TWO SIMPLE FACTS WASHINGTON, April 30.—The necessity for the well integrated seven-point program ordered by the President for preventing inflation is found in two simple facts:

First, the government, through the huge war spending program, is pouring more money into the pockets of the people than ever before in history; and second, the market for consumer goods which in peace time would be expected to absorb these greatly augmented earnings is being severely curtailed.

As Mr. Roosevelt himself pointed out in his latest fireside chat to the nation, you don't have to be a professor of economics to see what will happen if the people, with plenty of cash in their pockets, start bidding against each other for scarce goods.

Government spending, the President revealed, is now running at the rate of about $100,000,000 a day and will be double this amount by the end of the year. Future war demands may cause it to be increased even more. At the very minimum government economists estimate that at the current rate of expenditures and war production the people will end up the year with between 15 and 17 billion dollars in surplus after paying for normal savings operations, and purchasing the various consumer goods and services which enter into our daily lives.

Here is a huge sum of money in profits or unexpended balance, representing 25 per cent of what the total national income was before the war, which is available for spending. Because of the curtailment of our peace industries—automobiles, washing machines, refrigerators and a thousand other items—to a war footing, there just aren't enough goods to go around. If all of that 15 or 17 billion dollars started bidding for the limited supply of articles prices would skyrocket and money would lose its value.

TO SAVE HEADACHES The only logical thing to do before the situation got out of control was precisely what Mr. Roosevelt has ordered—price ceilings, wage stabilization and rationing. They will save us many headaches in the future.

The chief criticism directed at the President's program in congress has come from sources which were demanding further legislation on the labor side to prevent the raising of the ceiling on farm product prices from the present authorized 110 per cent to 100 per cent of parity. But these provisions of the program were probably intended to offset each other.

The President is opposed to eliminating the present statutory provision for a 40-hour work-week. Labor is already working in excess of 50 hours a week. The only effect of the elimination would be to reduce wages by approximately 10 per cent, which is accounted for in the allowance of time and a half pay for overtime in excess of 40 hours.

ONE AGAINST THE OTHER Most of the people in congress who were demanding elimination of the 40-hour week were leaders in the fight which succeeded in placing a 110 per cent ceiling on farm parity prices. There is little chance that the farm group will give up its present advantage. By linking the farm and labor situations together as the President has done, the President has made it more difficult for the farm bloc to press for labor law repeal.

Thus, Mr. Roosevelt tends to gain his point on labor. It is doubtful that he is greatly disturbed about 110 per cent farm parity prices disturbing the national economy too much. But by making a positive recommendation on farm prices and a negative recommendation on labor legislation, he makes it difficult for congress to turn him down on both points. What he is doing is to make both situations will be left as they are. Already the senate has abandoned the special order previously granted for consideration of the proposed new labor bill.

MORALE BUILDER Congress is already tackling the subject of profits limitation in connection with the new tax bill now being considered so that there was hardly anything new in this phase of the President's program, other than the proposal for limiting individual incomes to $25,000 a year after taxes. The latter was probably put forward as a morale builder in keeping with the President's declaration that no one would be allowed to get rich out of the war. It undoubtedly will have the effect of stopping the practice of war industries giving huge bonuses to their officials, but it is difficult at the moment to see how congress could impose the limitation without a lot of inequitable distinctions in the present scheme of things.

Mr. Roosevelt hopes to surprise the greedy of American earnings absorbed through voluntary purchases of war bonds and stamps. If the people would apply their new-found prosperity to this form of investment rather than spend the money in competition with each other for scarce goods the country will be provided with a sound basis for the economic upheaval that will follow with the end of the war.

SILHOUETTES

"Which" Or "Who"

Mrs. Zoe K. Brockman is society editor of The Gastonia (N. C.) Gazette. Judging by the sample of her editorial ability which I propose to present further along in this column, she is a darn good editor, society or otherwise. I did not live in mortal fear of the gals in our own society department.

But some subjects are difficult. I'm going to give you—have patience now—Mrs. Brockman's answer which once and for all should prove that any newspaper worthy the name is a "who." It doesn't matter what the personality in its columns, an editor whose beliefs and faiths and ideals stick out in every issue, it is a pretty dead sort of thing. And the chances are it will be literally dead in about as long as it takes the possible readers of its territory to find out about it.

What I'm trying to get at, however, is that a newspaper being, actually, a projection of the personality of its editor, it is bound to be wrong in its views now and then. Of course if the editor is worthy of his trust, it will be right most of the time. But some subjects are difficult to analyze, difficult to arrive at the actual value, and human nature being human nature every editor is going to overlook some important factor in connection with some subject he is trying to analyze, occasionally.

Better Wrong Than Dead What you have to do is, having read the editorials over a considerable period of time, decide whether you think the editor is not, generally, right. If he is right 80 per cent of the time, he's a good man to follow. If that's a high percentage. Ordinary folk do well if they average being right 50 per cent of the time and politicians are high in the averages when they climb to .08 per cent of rectitude.

When your pet editor does go wrong, in your opinion, on that 20 per cent of his thoughts, remember that still it is only a matter of your opinion against his. So, even if you miss a copy you give the circulation department what for.

"General MacArthur came alive for you through the newspapers, and now—when you read the stories of his exploits—you hear martial music and see the flag waving high against the sun of the day seriously—and it gives you the nonsensical news with a great smacking of the thighs. The newspaper tells you about the important happenings in the community and it gathers for you all the trivialities of the town, and it slaps you on the back on one page and pins your ears back on another. It amuses you and it makes you mad. You write a letter to the editor, you maybe you stop speaking to him. You say there's nothing in the paper today—but if you miss a copy you give the circulation department what for.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Why Was This? NEW YORK, April 30.—I have often wondered why it was that over the many years in which our standard daily press maintained a regular "labor run" we never received from the reporters on the job any inkling of the true character of the professional unionizer.

The corruption on their run was plain and the openly larcenous methods of many of the bosses, especially in the AFL, was common knowledge in the union set. In this connection, it should be pointed out that most of the top leaders of the CIO, and John L. Lewis, were AFL men during most of the time that this condition existed at its worst. They all were aware and tolerant of this criminality at the expense of the common American worker and none of them who have since pulled away from the old organization is in a position to level the finger of scorn at Brother Will Green's group.

Reporters assigned to the union run came to be regarded as authorities on their subject and, indeed, some there were whose knowledge of union politics, personalities and interunion relationships was no less alert and informed than that of the city hall man and the headquarters man on their respective beats. If a comparable condition developed at the city hall or headquarters, the man on the run eventually broke the story. But it was left to reporters from outside the union run and to local prosecutors acting on specific complaints from individuals to expose at last a condition which was and still remains a national peril and disgrace and a menace to the very labor movement itself.

Why was this, do you suppose? Do reporters become overinflated by those with whom they have dealings day by day and yield to a subconscious temptation to protect such individuals from fair publicity concerning foul practices? Do they fear to expose them out of fear that they will not receive the backing of their editors and thus will alienate vital sources of routine news? Do they suppress information in a mistaken belief that such disclosures would be exploited to the detriment of the workers?

Or are they bribed?

As He Sees It One of the wisest of the old-time professional union stiffs, a card man for 35 years, whom I number among my close friends in the movement, has consistently encouraged me to expose thieves and racketeers whose operations have been known to him since he was a young man. He has helped me with background information on individual crooks whose rascality at the expense of the rank and file worker is now fairly well known to you, and often tells me that others like him privately applaud the revelation of rottenness which has been well known to them for years. And, as he sees it, the reticence or indifference of the so-called labor reporter is chargeable to two factors, dumbness and a rather amiable venality.

They are so familiar with corruption that they are no longer aware of it. They believe that because they found this condition when they came on the job and everyone accepted it as a natural condition, it calls for no comment. And, my friend added, they also get taken for free rides to the state and national conventions, where they are entertained and lickered up as trusted guests of the mob, all at the expense of the working stiff who pays the dues, and would feel guilty of treachery to confiding and hospitable friends were they to squeal in print.

Policy of Bribery But I find more specific information in a union paper calling for the Federationist, the paper of the AFL in the New Orleans area, under the signature of B. L. Stanford, editor of the Southern Teamster, which is the journal of the teamsters' union. In the Federationist of March 27, Mr. Stanford, writing with more honesty than guile, makes an open admission that unions have pursued a regular policy of bribery and not content with the suppression of news of criminality in the unions, complains bitterly that the purchased praises of bribed reporters are toned down before they make print in the papers.

"Central labor councils, in various cities," Mr. Stanford writes, "go to the extent of putting reporters of the newspapers on their pay rolls to get labor's story in its true light to the general public. Does this help? Let's look and see. First, the central body gives the story to the reporter who, in turn, writes a readable piece which is turned over to the city editor. Here the story is cut from a good one-column piece of news to about one or two paragraphs because he has orders from the managing editor who has orders from higher up in its entirety. Why is this being done? Someone is on someone's pay roll and what a pay roll."

You tell 'em about that pay roll, Mr. Stanford. And give some names, dates and amounts, please, because it looks as though here we might have the answer to the long concealment of the union racket from the readers of the standard daily press.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

CITY ELECTION Election managers have been elected by Atlanta's city council.

Probably because such managers are not usually called upon to serve in any capacity beyond the formal certification to the legality of the election, council did not give this year's election of managers sufficient consideration.

They elected as election managers for an election which is not a primary but a final election:

The wife of one of the candidates for mayor. The daughter of one of the candidates for mayor.

The office manager of still another candidate for mayor.

Three persons known to be working, and believed to be working for the formal certification to the legality of the election, council did not give this year's election of managers sufficient consideration.

These persons are good citizens and it may be assumed they do not want, nor did not mean, to place themselves or their candidates, for whom they are actively at work, in embarrassing positions.

All those persons who are at work for any one candidate must know their activities are known.

They owe it to themselves and their candidate to resign.

If they do not, council should investigate more thoroughly and remove from the list of those who must judge this election, all known to have actively participated in behalf of the candidacy of any of the candidates.

That is but fair. The public welfare commands it. This is not a primary.

It is an election.

The election managers must be impartial. It is not well to have suspicion cast on the election before it is held.

The large registration list shows interest. The people will want the impartial election managers to produce good election officials.

In the last municipal election there were persons employed who were too old to see or count the ballots. There those employed who were incompetent.

Known bug operators, plus the town's small-caliber Al Capone, were allowed to crowd around the ballot box when the counting began.

The people will want this—and future elections—held in a manner which council itself wants it held. Democracy is on trial. We cannot take chances.

POLITICAL PROGRESS All the many mayoralty candidates continue in the race, with election day an approximate month away.

One or two are showing signs of nervousness. But, for the most part, all are in the running with no announcements of any withdrawals in the immediate offing.

Because of the long-existing and strong friendship between Dewey Johnson, until recently state president of the American Federation of Labor in Georgia, and Dan Bridges, city councilman and chairman of the police committee, it is believed one of them will withdraw and throw his support to his friend. Neither, of course, admit any understanding. If there is one it will come later.

Johnson claims the support of all his associates in the Federation of Trades (AFL) and, with Bridges, long successful in city politics, and therefore in possession of an organization, makes up a combination which political leaders say gives all candidates their chief concern. All of them rate this combination, with a late switch by one for the other, as a strong force.

Howard Haire has a downtown headquarters and is working feverishly. He disclaims any connection with any combination and insists he is in it alone. He has been mentioned as part of a combination.

All others also seem to be going it alone. With a month to go many things can, and will, happen.

Meanwhile, council can assure the people of an election in which they can have confidence.

With democracy on trial and with our soldiers and sailors dying for it, there is no excuse, even in municipal elections, to be careless about the election machinery of our democratic processes.

The Tricky Sign Post Is Working If People Take the Wrong Road

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

At one of his press conferences some weeks ago, the President said in effect: "The press no longer has the influence it once had."

Beyond any doubt he believes that true which means that he modestly fails to realize why it seems to be true.

Consider the appointment of Donald Nelson. For many months the press pleaded for the appointment of some good man to coordinate production efforts. Magazines and newspapers told people the truth and showed them what a mess things were in, and the people were convinced.

Yet month after month passed and the President did nothing until, in the words of Fortune, the only alternative was disaster.

Why did the press seem to have no influence? Because it convinced only the people, and the people could do nothing about it. The President makes all decisions and gives all orders, and he wasn't convinced.

So when he said the press had lost influence, it meant: "The press once influenced the people more than it can influence me."

There are other reasons why the press seems to have lost influence. In other days, simply by telling the truth and reporting facts, the press could influence people to do what was best for their nation which political leaders say gives all candidates their chief concern. All of them rate this combination, with a late switch by one for the other, as a strong force.

Now there are thousands of radicals, and others who privately or openly give first allegiance to a foreign master, and these accuse newspapers of lying, and find nothing that is printed by decent publications that spend fortunes to get the news and print it without bias.

But this doesn't indicate that the press has lost influence, for these people are wholly dominated by the radical and disloyal publications that cater to their prejudices and hates.

There is no influence that the wrong kind of press has influence for many of our people still fail in their duty and indirectly help our enemies because they are deceived by traitorous publications.

There are two daily papers and half a dozen other periodicals—some using the cloak of religion—that openly and brazenly serve our enemies. They pretended to be patriotic for a few weeks after Pearl Harbor; but when they saw the people were not scared and dangerous, they discarded all pretense of loyalty and resumed their sly and cunning and treacherous campaign to destroy morale and cripple our war effort.

They should have been suppressed long ago, and to think they have lived in impunity for so long is to make the ancient and tragic blunder of underestimating the enemy.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Dudley Glass

One of my favorite topics—perhaps because I am in such intimate daily contact with it—is the street car. Confined as closely to my desk as I am, I see more people and more different kinds of people on these proletarian vehicles than anywhere else.

I interrupt myself to say that I consider the rubber tired, trackless trolley the best of the three. I find it virtually impossible to read a newspaper, a book or a magazine while on board one. They are too bumpy, which probably is the fault of the paving, not the vehicle. The old street car on steel track was more noisy, but it wasn't bumpy and if a man's daily ride was long enough he could wade clear through the five-foot shelf of Harvard classics—provided he lived long enough.

My trolleys—I play no favorites between Buckhead and Oglethorpe routes—are growing more congested day by day. I observe new faces—many worn by women who look as though they had strayed into the slums by mistake. They are learning how to seek out a red stop sign, how to stand out on the asphalt so the conductor must either stop or have his company sued for enormous damages, how to buy two tokens for 15 cents and thus save 25 per cent, and even how to drop a token into the snapping jaws of the coin receiver. Soon, if this tire shortage keeps up and gasoline is rationed, they'll learn to proceed down the aisle to the only vacant seat without doing a swan dive into some passenger's lap. The trolley car is going to make the apprentice at Grady and the Habersham lady sisters under the skin.

But what is bothering me at this moment is the matter of dogs. It isn't personal because my dog never gets a ride unless he must go to a hospital, which won't happen again soon, I hope.

But what of the dogs accustomed to their daily automobile outing? The well-trained dogs who stare haughtily from the window of a limousine, the ill-bred mutts who yap at all who approach their rolling castle.

No dogs on street cars. That's been a rule since the one-hoss shay fell to pieces all at once. A good rule, too. Yielding to no man in my love for dogs, I maintain that their place is in the house or the yard, not on street cars nor running loose in the street.

But I fear this rationing is going to be fearfully tough on the canine race. Maybe they can be taught to ride a bicycle. They did it, quite skillfully, in Gentry's Dog and Pony Show.

UAW ATTACKS

PEGLER COLUMN
Editor, The Atlanta Constitution:
Occasionally, even Westbrook Pegler gets something right. Or rather, in a column of some 750 words, there are a few sentences of truth.

In Thursday's Constitution appeared another of Mr. Pegler's attacks on American unionism—leveled this time at the UAW-CIO.

Said Mr. Pegler:
"Officially, it was the President who proposed to congress that no person be allowed to receive a net income, after taxes are paid, of more than $25,000 a year, but in actual fact, I think the country may thank the United Automobile Workers of the CIO for the revolutionary suggestion of a top limit on the privilege of every American's ability and ingenuity."

I hope Mr. Pegler's statement is correct. The United Automobile Workers did sponsor such a program, is still sponsoring it.

I do not know that it was the suggestion of the UAW-CIO that inspired the nation's chief executive in his recent address to congress. I hope so. It is indeed a signal honor of which UAW-CIO may well be proud.

Mr. Pegler is perturbed. Such a law might well reduce the income of the hereditary money barons of America. It might even reduce the income of Mr. Pegler!

It would seem so, for comments Mr. Pegler:
"The limitation would apply to all incomes, even if derived from activities utterly apart from the war program or its industries. It is not to be confined to war profiteers."

Is Mr. Pegler's knowledge of fundamental economics really that limited?
Does not Mr. Pegler know that today there is no business unaffected by the war program?

Take any industry not even related to the war effort. But does not Mr. Pegler know that if the street a few days ago was based on a newspaper story from Washington that next year's federal taxes would prevent anybody's having a net income, after all taxes were paid, of more than $25,000 a year.

"Gosh, that's going to put a crimp in me," said almost everybody. "Don't see how I'm going to get along."

Typical American humor, for nobody I heard make such a remark ever dreamed—except after a Welsh rabbit supper—of ever drawing down $25,000 a year, even before paying taxes. The wisecracks came from newsmen and elevator men and reporters and folk unaffected by income taxes—as yet.

There are, I am sure, quite a number of Atlantans in the big brackets who do spend $25,000 a year and more, and that announcement has started them thinking. At least, one of the few big shots I know said he was thinking and thinking hard.

This is no sob story about the sufferings threatened the rich. I am far more interested in how increased taxes are going to hit the $25,000 to $50,000 a year "white collar" worker.

You may laugh at the old depression gag, "down to his last yacht," but seriously a $25,000 a year limit is going to cause thousands of folk to remodel their way of living in a most drastic manner.

It costs a lot of money to run a big estate or a hunting preserve—and a lot of it goes to the hired hands. Retrenchment will hit some of them first of all. Luckily, it looks like there'll be plenty of employment for men skilled in anything and even those equipped only with a cane-cutter's qualities—"a strong back and a weak mind."

Nobody can take a substantial cut in income without feeling it—hard. Because everybody has become accustomed to a "scale of living." It is difficult to adjust one's self. There are so many fixed expenses, such as life insurance and mortgage payments that must be met or else a big investment forfeited.

So don't laugh at the poor rich man. He's going to have to take it and I think most of them will take it with a grin. They might as well.

Noted gossip columnist leads off with a MacArthur story—about how, on Bataan, he summoned an engineer and asked how long it would take to build a bridge across a river. "Three days," said the engineer. "Get your drawings made," said MacArthur. In three days he called for a report on progress. "The bridge is finished," said the engineer. "But then pictures ain't done yet."

That was a popular story in my earliest youth, with Stonewall Jackson in the general's role. Probably General Washington had the same thing happen to him. I have been unable to run down anything on Julius Caesar.

retailer sells more today it is because his customers have more money—money that came from pay checks bolstered by the war program? If the retailer's profits increase, he is profiteering from the war—just as much as if he were selling his bottled wares directly to the government at exorbitant rates.

So it is with the sellers of food, or furniture, of any and all businesses that make up the vast American commercial and industrial picture. No man can make more money today than he made one year ago and not be accused of war profiteering. And, for Mr. Pegler's information, that applies to the working man—to the union man—as well as to the business tycoon.

The unions of America realize that. That is why they have offered voluntarily to make concessions in these troubled times; why they receive time and a half and double time today far less frequently than a year ago; why the unions relinquished voluntarily their priceless freedom of economic action, the right to strike.

Yet, says Mr. Pegler, "these captive workers brought in by armed thugs" fostered the strike at the North American Aviation plant.

Mr. Pegler did not choose to examine the record. He did not tell his readers that this strike was sponsored by a few individuals against the instruction of the international union. He forgot to mention that the responsible parties were expelled from the union and the employees ordered back to work by the international union.

He implied that the proposal of the union to accept non-negotiable defense bonds in lieu of wages for more than 40 hours a week was a criminal attempt on the part of union officials to profiteer at the expense of the union's own members.

He forgot to mention that this program was voted on by each and every union affiliated with UAW-CIO; that it was not, in fact, a program adopted by the executive board of UAW-CIO, but a proposal voted by the union members themselves which they desired the officials of their union to effect for them.

Mr. Pegler, because there have been unfortunate episodes in the history of unionism—even as in the development of America, or any other nation—to thereby damn nearly three-quarters of a million Americans as "captive workers of armed thugs" is certainly grossly unjust.

Just as well to damn all newspapers because of Mr. Pegler. THOMAS STARLING, Executive Board Member, International Union, UAW-CIO and Director of Region No. 8.

Air Raid Sirens Again Delayed

Installation of the 250 air raid warning sirens for Atlanta must await delivery of relays May 27—the date of the city election—to operate them, Dewey L. Johnson, city superintendent of electrical affairs in charge of civilian defense signals, said yesterday. Johnson asserted that he had been promised prompt delivery for the relays, but that a change in priorities has delayed them, and that May 27 now has been set. Of the 250 sirens purchased 185 have been mounted, but they cannot be used until the relays have been installed. He added that all downtown installations already have been wired, and that other wiring is proceeding so that the ability of the city to use the system will not be delayed longer when the relays arrive.

Parley To Discuss Schools' Problems

Problems confronting the Lake Grammar school and Murphy Junior High school will be discussed by three men prominent in Atlanta public life during a meeting of the East Lake Civic Club at 8 o'clock tonight in the East Lake school auditorium. The meeting will be known as "school night."

Dr. H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of schools, will speak on "Murphy Junior High and East Lake Grammar School: Their Present and Future." Fire

Chief C. C. Styron will talk on "The Safety of Children at Murphy Now." The third speaker will be Devereaux McClatchey. He will speak on "The School Board's Ideas and Plans for Murphy." The school board, city council, county commissioners, the state educational department and P. T. A. members have been invited.

Canned-Food Census.

Planned for May 29
WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) A census of canned foods in the United States will be made May 29.

The Census Bureau will make the survey at the request of the Office of Price Administration in order to provide a guide for potential problems of rationing, lend-lease supplies and other problems. The census, however, will not take in home pantries or small stores. Its main object will be to tabulate supplies in the hands of canners, wholesalers and food chains.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

3 Georgians Man With 18,000 Tulip Bulbs Graduated as Bombardiers Refuses To Sell a Single One

Two Atlantans Take Places Among 'Most Dangerous Men.'

Two Atlantans and another Georgian were among graduates of the first class of America's "most dangerous men" when commissions were awarded yesterday at the world's greatest bombardier training school at the Midland (Texas) Army flying school.

The Atlantans were Joseph H. Burke, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burke, who was appointed class commander by his commanding officer in recognition of outstanding ability, and Jerry E. Upchurch, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Upchurch.

The other Georgia graduate was James E. Zorn, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julie Zorn, of Ashburn.

The young men were commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army air force. The graduation marked the first of "Hell From Heaven Men" at the training school.

The name "Hell From Heaven Men" derives from the fact these men are trained to be expert bombardiers, fighters who will carry the war to the enemy.

Burke was a student at Atlanta Junior College and the United States Military Academy at West Point. He is a member of Phi Sigma Alpha fraternity and in civilian life was a layout artist with a printing firm.

Upchurch, a former insurance man, attended Georgia Evening College in Atlanta and North Georgia College at Dahlonega, where he won letters in baseball and basketball. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

Zorn, former student at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College at Tifton, where he played on the baseball and tennis teams, was a telephone lineman in civilian life.

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., April 30.—(AP)—You'd think a man with 18,000 tulip bulbs—625 varieties—would get in the business.

But not Fred Barchers. He's never sold one and says he never will.

"Flowers," he explained, "are made to look at—to enjoy. When you pick them you ruin them."

Barchers, disabled veteran of the first World War, receives a pension that provides him with the necessities. Five years ago, at Reyno, Ark., groping for something to do, he decided on growing tulips—his favorite flower.

The thousands of bulbs he collected in the ensuing years came from all sections of the nation—led him to lay claim to the title, "world's champion tulip grower."

But it seemed a shame, letting the beauty of his expansive gardens wilt away, unnoticed except by a few flower lovers in the small community.

So Barchers dug up his bulbs last year and transplanted them to a farm five miles west of Popular Bluff—simply because he wanted to be near a larger town where more could join him in enjoying the fruits of his toil.

"You get great joy out of growing flowers," he said, "but our greatest kick is in seeing them appreciated by others. Some 3,000 people came to my tulip farm this year. It's a shame they don't last longer, but about a week ends their beauty."

Barchers' current crop of blossoms is almost gone. Another season will find him tripling the space allotted to the bulbs. Again, there'll be thousands of waxlike, multi-colored tulips—but none for sale, none to be plucked from their slender stems.

"Flowers," the gardener repeated, "when you pick them, you ruin them."

$3,900 Is Urged For Defense Need

City council's finance committee yesterday recommended that $3,900 be authorized by city council for purchase of 18,000 civilian defense arm bands and 35,000 identification cards. The recommendation will go to council Monday for action of that body.

Councilman John A. White, finance committee chairman, warned civilian defense demands will aggregate $175,000 within the next few months, and the city must provide the fund.

Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, commander of municipal defense activities, had approved a budget calling for a total expenditure of $29,357. Other items on the list will be considered after efforts to obtain county participation have been made, it was indicated.

One-Cent Drop In Atlanta Milk Price Predicted

Reduction Slated for May 18 Following Order by OPA.

Retail milk prices in Atlanta and Savannah may drop a cent a quart May 18 under the OPA order fixing maximum prices at the March level.

The State Milk Control Board ordered the costs of home-delivered milk advanced from 16 to 17 cents per quart in Atlanta and from 17 to 18 cents a quart in Savannah early this month.

Margaret Davis, board secretary, said yesterday she assumed these increases would be rescinded, asserting that "Of course we will do whatever the government orders." She pointed out, however, that the milk board's order was issued in March, although it did not become effective until April. She said this raises a technical question that will have to be settled

Man Who Kept 'Em Flying on Bataan Killed in Accident

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 30.—(AP) Brigadier General Harold H. George, the man who accomplished the impossible with the tiny U. S. air force on Bataan, has been killed in a flying accident, Allied headquarters announced today.

The announcement disclosed also that Melville Jacoby, Time and Life Magazine correspondent, died with General George. No details of the accident were made public, but it was recalled that a Lockheed airliner with 12 military passengers had been missing since April 21 en route to North Australia, and that two days ago this aircraft was given up for lost.

On recommendation of General Douglas MacArthur, General George was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal posthumously and was cited in today's War Department communiqué for his personal courage, unceasing devotion to duty, ingenuity and leadership "in the execution of seemingly impossible tasks" while keeping his force "intact and effective" in the tragic operations on Bataan.

Accompanied MacArthur. General George, 49 years old and slight of stature, commanded all air corps effective in the Philippines from last December 21 until he accompanied General MacArthur on his dramatic trip from Bataan to Australia. Here, he had been air officer on General MacArthur's staff.

The man who kept MacArthur's air force going on Bataan was extremely popular and aggressive. He ate and lived with his men and mixed freely with mechanics and pilots alike.

He won the Distinguished Service Cross for shooting down five German planes while a lieutenant in the air corps in the first World War. A year ago he sailed for Pacific duty and last January he was made a general officer for his distinguished service in the Philippines.

Son Is Private. General George's wife and daughter, Peggy, 19, live in Redlands, Cal. A son, Robert C., 21, is a private first class at Camp Lockett, near the Mexican border. Jacoby, 25, also came from Bataan last month with his wife after covering the defense of the peninsula. He was cited today by General MacArthur "not only for literary talents but for complete devotion to military standards," and the communiqué added: "He could well have served as a model for war correspondents at the front."

The bodies of General George and Jacoby arrived at headquarters tonight and were met at the air field by an air corps squadron acting as a guard of honor. General George's funeral will be held Saturday with full air force honors. The Jacoby funeral arrangements are incomplete.

The general's grief-stricken widow said in a statement: "We have always known there was nothing we would not do for our loved country, so I guess we can do this, too."

"It is a shame that the country had to lose as fine a man as he. There was no one better prepared for his job, and none who loved it more. He was doing what he always wanted to do, fighting for his country."

PRADO DUE MAY 5. WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP) The State Department announced today that President Manuel Prado, of Peru, would arrive in Miami May 5 for a two-week official visit in the United States at the invitation of President Roosevelt.

At the City Hall

Leon Henderson, administrator of OPA, yesterday formally notified Mayor Lyle that Atlanta has been designated a defense rental area and that rent ceilings will become effective. Only routine matters were considered yesterday at a meeting of city council's sanitary committee. Councilman James E. Jackson Jr., chairman, presided.

BOYS AND GIRLS.

If you are interested in boys and girls—and who isn't?—then you will be interested in vacation Bible schools. And that means that you will be interested in what people who are devoting their lives to vacation Bible schools have to say at this particular moment.

Sibley Burnett, associate director of the vacation Bible work of the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn., is in Georgia this week, speaking in a number of communities throughout the state about the plans for vacation Bible schools this summer. He will conclude his tour in a message at the Sunday evening service at Druid Hills Baptist church Sunday night, 8 o'clock.

I heard Mr. Burnett in his opening talk last Monday morning at the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association. He gave me a deepened appreciation of the work of vacation Bible schools, and strengthened my purpose to work at the job in my own church this summer as never before. We have had a vacation Bible school at our church since 1922, and I know the value of this idea; but never have I felt it so deeply as I do today. And there are reasons at hand why these schools are more important this summer than ever before.

For example: England showed a 50 per cent increase in juvenile delinquency at the end of the first year after the outbreak of the present war. Students of the British scene say that the explanation for this increase in juvenile delinquency is found in the fact that they neglected their boys and girls in the crucial days of the bombing of London and the other communities of the British Isles, and by neglect they do not mean that there was conscious oversight of their well being, but nevertheless, in their terrible hour of emergency, they were unable to do for the boys and girls what they had been doing for them, and the results tell the tragic story. These very leaders in England have wisely and graciously suggested that we be forewarned by their experience—that we make provision for the continuing moral training of our boys and girls.

Again, our boys and girls will not go away to camps and vacations this summer as so many of them have been privileged to do in former years. They will be at home, looking for something to do. Many of them will find essential work in this emergency, but many others will not. The churches have a responsibility to these boys and girls, and the vacation Bible school offers a constructive, appealing program of Bible study, craft work, and recreation which will be a blessing today and tomorrow, believe we can double the enrollment of the vacation Bible schools this summer. We are going to undertake just that at Druid Hills.

Marine Parade To Be Staged This Afternoon

Troops From All Over State To Aid-Recruiting Drive.

Marines from the whole state of Georgia—and that's not so many, because most of them are out fighting—will march in their largest parade here at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The parade has been defined by Lieutenant Colonel John D. O'Leary, super-recruiter of the corps, as a recruiting parade. It is being sponsored by the Wake Island detachment of the Marine Corps League, made up of ex-leathernecks.

Mayor George B. Lyle and the Governor have issued proclamations for "Marine Appreciation Week," starting today.

Marines in dress blues and nurses will be on the featured float. The Georgia Military Academy, Boys' High and Police Department bands, and units from Fort McPherson, Red Cross, Marxist College, new recruits and other organizations will march. There'll be drum majorettes, too. A dozen bombers from the Naval Reserve Air Bases will fly over during the parade and drop 20,000 Marine recruiting circulars.

The parade will start at the city hall, go down Mitchell street to Whitehall and out Peachtree to Baker street. Later several recruits will be inducted on the stage of the Fox Island detachment of the Marine theater.

Indian Leader Stresses New Bid for Unity

'C. R.' Resigns From Congress Party Group To Free Hands.

ALLAHABAD, India, April 30.—(AP)—Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, former president of the All-India Congress party, resigned today from the party's working committee to emphasize his demand for unity with the Moslem league in the interests of India.

Some observers regarded his move as an effort to give himself a free hand in a debate expected to arise in the current session of the party committee over a resolution which he introduced calling for Hindu-Moslem co-operation. Some leaders of the party said Rajagopalachari's resignation was virtually automatic when he decided to put up a fight on a principle strongly opposed by most other leaders.

The president of the party, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, declared meanwhile that whatever India's internal problems she should fight to the death against aggression.

Kentucky Derby To Attract Fans Despite Tire Shortage

• • • TOMORROW IS DERBY DAY! Once more the world-famous race track at Churchill Downs, Ky., will attract a record crowd of turf fans for the sixty-eighth annual Kentucky Derby. And, once more, Atlantans en masse are scrambling for plane and train reservations—but this time with more zeal, because the prevailing tire shortage renders motor travel almost prohibitive. You hear them talking about it—the business executive, the man in the street, the soldier, the sailor and the marine. Names like Alsab, Sun Again, Hollywood, Devil Diver and Shut Out are now familiar to racing enthusiasts, many of whom will "lose their shirts" again at Saturday's classic. But they will journey to Louisville, undaunted by the possibility of losses.

There will be parties galore in celebration of the exciting event. The exclusive Penderennis Club will, as usual, serve as headquarters for many visitors. The club opened its Derby festivities last evening at an elaborate dinner-dance.

Derby breakfasts, suppers and dances will be held at the River Valley Club and the Louisville Country Club, as well as numerous private parties. The Derby highlight at the Kentucky will be the annual dinner of the Kentucky Colonels, which has been christened Victory Dinner, and which will be followed by an elaborate entertainment schedule.

Atlantans who will attend include Mr. and Mrs. Luther Randall, who departed last evening for Louisville to be members of a huge party at the Brown hotel. The party will occupy an entire floor of the hotel, and is an annual Derby event assembling members of the social set in Cincinnati, Ohio and Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding will be among tomorrow's cheering throng, and will be admitted visitors attending Derby social functions.

Atlantans in Louisville will greet with pleasure Mrs. J. N. Camden, whose husband is a high official in the racing association. Mrs. Camden lived here on Wesley road when she was married to the late Brutus Clay.

Viewing the races from a box will be Mr. and Mrs. William C. Satterthwaite, Dr. William Warren and Dr. E. Russell Burke. Occupying two to three to tomorrow's classic will be Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Hopping, Mrs. Fred Jordan, Paul King, Gus King, Ed Morris, P. B. Martin Jr., Dr. Ralston Thorpe, of Austell; Jim Garner and Edgar Anderson, of Smyrna, who will board the Louisville-bound train this evening. Tomorrow morning Paul King will be among honor guests attending the Derby breakfast at which Mrs. Marcus E. Burk will entertain at her home on Cherokee road, the affair to assemble a large number of prominent political figures. Mr. King will be accompanied to the breakfast by Ed Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hogg Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Corn and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Howard leave this evening for the Blue Grass state, where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers at the track.

Occupying a car en route to Kentucky this evening will be Mrs. Gordon L. Ingle, H. Carson Smith, J. T. Smith, Mrs. Fan Esther Hall, Sophia McKinnin, Mrs. Elizabeth Cole, Mrs.

When Children

NEED MORE MILK

There's no doubt children need plenty of the nourishment that milk supplies best... calcium for strong teeth, body-building proteins, protective vitamins. Yet many children get tired of drinking so much milk; some cannot digest it readily. Here's an easy way to increase daily milk consumption. Make it into delicious eggless, non-cooked custards with "Junket" Rennet Powder (six flavors). Takes but a minute, and the colorful, tempting desserts appeal to the appetite of everyone. The rennet custards make them easier to digest than plain milk. (At all grocers).

For economy, make rennet-custards also with "Junket" Rennet Tablets—unflavored, add sugar and flavor to taste. (At drugstores and grocers).

Some Facts About Higher Food Prices

By Ida Jean Kain.

Nowadays you can't come home with enough change left out of a five-dollar bill to pay the paper boy and you are apt to hold the grocer personally responsible. You may even suspect he is nicking the customers a nickel more for butter so he can pay for his wife's spring outfit. But there is more than that to the price rise.

Paul Willis, president of the American Grocers' Association, told the nutritionists some illuminating facts on both the direct and indirect causes of the price increase the other evening. I was very much interested in finding out what it is that determines prices and I am sure you will be.

Since 1939, the retail price of food has gone up 16.8 per cent. The three important fluctuating factors in this increase are the cost of labor, farm prices and taxes. All these have been tacked on to the price you pay for food.

We are assured that everyone in the food business is fighting further increases. To halt advances, price ceilings have been placed on all commodities with a tendency to be jumpy. That is quite an improvement over conditions in the last war, but there is room for more improvement.

There are some factors, of course, over which nobody has any control—such as the weather during harvest time, and the problems of labor and transportation during war times. Another unpredictable factor is the quantity of food that will be necessary to ship abroad under the lend-lease bill.

The American food industry is being rapidly mobilized for war. More acreage is devoted to the essential foodstuffs than ever before in the history of our country, and it is expected that the vastly expanded production will be enough to supply both America and the allied countries.

There is one thing affecting food costs which you can help to control. That is hoarding. Looked at coolly, it amounts to a crime. It was hoarding more than anything else that was responsible for the jump in the price of sugar from four dollars per 100 pounds to 30 dollars during the other war.

Mr. Willis declared that the homemaker is to be congratulated on her sane and patriotic buying in this present emergency. Although there are some grabby women, the majority are trying to go right along with Uncle Sam.

You do not need to stock up. You may miss some of the old, familiar packages from the grocer's shelves, for many of the foods will be wearing new dresses. But the food inside will be as familiar and as good as ever.

Send a large stamped envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the "Protective Diet Chart" and take your weight down on high vitamin diets.

FROM "THE DESERT SONG"—Bill Wyatt, as Sid El Kar; Hazel Poss, as Margot Bonvalet; Mary Ann Linane, as Azuri; James Witherington, as Captain Paul Fontaine, and Julian Rawlings, as Benjamin Kid, the reporter, in a scene from "The Desert Song," coming next week to the Erlanger theater.

Vitamins Reduce Craving for Starches

By Dr. William Brady.

A person weighing 150 pounds consumes about 140 calories by walking 2½ miles in an hour.

A glass of milk yields approximately that many calories, so does a slice of bread or a scoop of ice cream or a trial size dish of lobster salad. A pretty kettle of fish when a girl is caught short on girdles, isn't it?

After all, there is good physiological or perhaps we should say pathological foundation for the familiar complaint of women in the thirties that they don't seem to get the strength from their food or it just goes to fat. That is precisely what ails a good many young women, and some men—some deficiency in their metabolism or utilization (oxidation, combustion) of carbohydrate (starch, sugar) which causes more than the normal amount of glycogen (animal starch)—into which all carbohydrate is changed for use in the body) to form and accumulate in liver, blood, tissues instead of being completely burned or oxidized to supply energy. This incompletely oxidized carbohydrate is too readily converted into fat.

Just what factor is lacking in such individuals is still a question in the minds of most authorities, but, heck, I am satisfied in my own mind that the deficiency is mainly vitamin B complex deficiency. Not that I have demonstrated this scientifically—indeed, I have not carried on any animal experimentation since Tony the Irish Terror gave me that last reproachful look and that last certain wag of his tail as I handed him over to the executioner, just when I thought I had him recovering his youth on the Iodin Ration and Vitamins.

A good many of these young adults with a tendency to obesity and an excessive fondness for starches and sweets find that they are satisfied with less food, particularly less starches and sweets, after they adopt the practice of supplementing their daily diet with a good daily ration of vitamins. Hence it is essential to increase the vitamin intake whenever you follow a reduction diet, or even try to follow a moderate maintenance diet and avoid overeating.

MY DAY: Plans For Child Care In Wartime

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—Yesterday evening, in New York City, I sat on a panel which inaugurated a series of forum discussions to be carried on through the spring for the benefit of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. I was delighted to find my cousin, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, as well as a number of pleasant acquaintances on the panel. The subject was women's work in the war and an effort was made to cover as many activities outside of actual industrial work.

The President's speech was heard over the loudspeaker at the hotel where we assembled and everyone listened eagerly. I think his closing stories about the heroism of some of our men fitted in particularly well with an appeal which one of the speakers made for the USO. She had mentioned the fact that some people wrongly think that the services rendered outside the camps to men of the armed forces are apt to make them "sissies." Somehow, that seems to be a poor word to apply to the average boy in our services. If we needed corroboration on her stand, the President's speech gave it.

These stories are illustrative of hundreds of thousands of equally heroic deeds which are being performed every day in the line of duty. Some of them will never be reported. Others will receive recognition in time. One need never worry about the heroism of the youth of America.

Almost as a day, any newspaper can supply you with innumerable acts in civilian life which require courage, initiative and quick thinking and are the background for heroic deeds.

Miss Thompson and I took the plane back to Washington this morning, and I was here for my press conference at 11 o'clock. Miss Katharine Lenroot attended to talk about the Pan-American Child Congress, which will open on May 2. I was particularly pleased to hear her say that the advances made since this congress first met were really notable.

Now, at its eighth session, we can fix our minds primarily on the needs of the children in the war. We still can feel that well-established social legislation will carry forward the program and improve the agencies now set up in the different countries on this continent, so that the children will be cared for in peacetime as well as during the period.

I am sure that everyone has the same feeling that I have, a sense of relief that we are going to be told what we should do in this war period in our homes. It will surely reach down into our lives. Some of us may find some adjustments difficult, but, after all, the adjustment of the boy who leaves his job and goes into the armed services is a far more drastic one.

Hollywood Begins Work On Epic To Glorify This War's Heroes

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, April 30.—(INS)—Hollywood is not waiting for history to glorify the heroes of this war. The brave lads on Wake Island are the inspiration of Para's movie, "Wake Island." And now comes Columbia announcing purchase of the diary of Lieutenant Franklin K. Stanton, British officer killed defending an outpost in the African desert.

What particularly interests me about this drama of a real life hero is there will be no typical glamor trappings. There is nary a woman in the cast, which will be headed by Brian Aherne, Glenn Ford and Edgar Buchanan. The picture will be called "Salute to Sahara," with Harry Joe Brown producing.

The next time George Sanders wisecracks about building a new house in a "non-swanky neighborhood where the taxes are low," I hope I don't hear about it. Every one of George's prospective new neighbors have written me irately that the neighborhood is not only good enough for him—but too good for both of us—Sanders for making such a remark and me for printing it! Ouch! Whether this civic battle has anything to do with it or not, 20th Century Fox had decided to hand the villainous Mr. Sanders a sympathetic role—that of the blind hero in Hugh Walpole's "Blind Man's House."

Sanders, who just loves pretending to be a meanie on the screen, plays an older man blinded in the last war who marries a beautiful young girl. Linda Darnell is set for the role of heroine, her first assignment since she stepped out of the part of the jitterbug wife in "Orchestra Wives."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Teresa Wright and Niven Busch have set the day for the wedding bells. Teresa leaves Hollywood Friday to spend two weeks shopping for her trousseau and then she's hurrying back to Hollywood, where she and Niven will be married immediately. This romance started when Teresa was working in "The Little Foxes" on the Goldwyn lot and Niven was the story editor for Sam. Now the good-looking young scripter is turning independent producer and is no longer under contract to Goldwyn. As for Teresa, it has been a big year for the little New York actress. From Mrs. "Lou Gehring" (in the movie, of course) to Mrs. Niven Busch in real life, is enough romance for any girl.

A LINE OR TWO: Maureen O'Hara is the latest finger accident victim on the 20th lot. In flick-

Frank Question Prevents Unhappiness

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am a bachelor and go with a grass widow. She has not lived with her husband in four years, although she has not gotten a divorce. She has one child. She seems to like me, for she will always have dates with me and appears to think a great deal of me. Do you think I should allow myself to fall in love with her? Should I marry her?

B. B. I would advise you against falling in love with her until you find out if there is a possibility of her ever being free to marry you. If she has not gotten a divorce from her husband, there must be some good reason, and if possible, you should try to find out why. Perhaps she still loves her husband and hopes some day for a reconciliation. If this is true, it will not help matters much if you fall in love with her and hope to marry her some time. I do not doubt that she likes you and enjoys being with you, and it is possible that she cares for you. Why don't you ask her some time if there is a chance for you?

Unless you make some effort to prove that you love her, there will be no reason for her to think that you are serious about her. Maybe she thinks that there is no need to divorce her husband, since you have given her no reason to believe that you are serious about her. It seems to me the best thing for you to do would be to come to the point and ask her if she cares for you in the way you care for her. If her answer gives you any hope, then I think you could possibly make some plans and also have her make some plans for a divorce.

SCHOOL GIRL IS UNWISSE TO SETTLE ON ONE BOY
Dear Dixie: I am in my teens and have a great problem. I have discovered

I am in love with a boy a few years my senior. I think he is in love with me but I would like to know. We go to the same school and are in the same class. What worries me is that school will close soon and perhaps I will never see him again and it will break my heart. I know I am too young for marriage but I would like to go with him till we are old enough to be married. How will I know if he really loves me and do tell me what to do to keep him with me until we are old enough to be married.

WORRIED.
If you and this boy share the same interests and seem to be congenial do your part by keeping the situation as it is at present. The thing for you to do is to try to be the same person you have been and be the girl he seems to like.

If he cares for you, he will not let the mere fact that your school association is over, keep him from you. You will have to hold him through the years in the same way you have held him during your school days. Remember, though, that ideals change with the years and it is possible that as you go on and meet other boys that you will not think as much of this boy as you do now. For that reason do not give up all your other friends for him in the hope that being true to him, will bind the existing mutual affection. You can go on with the other boys and have a nice time and still love him and be true to him if you desire.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21 and April 19th (ARIES)—It will pay to examine all situations today, not to enter into new obligations and new ideas impulsively. Plans of a daring nature may be made before you, but when your investigation started they are apt to lack soberness and soundness.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Activities which require sympathy and affection, and where the mind, feelings and emotions strike a chord, are slightly favored before 10:30 a. m. Between 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. favor temperance and avoiding excessiveness and over-activity.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Before 10:30 a. m. keep away from speculative ideas and scrutinize carefully any new project that may be brought to you for decisions at this time. Between 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. is an excellent period for advanced educational ideas.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Impulsiveness, both in judgment and in action, will fill your today, causing you to desire changes or do things in a hurry.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—You are likely to feel an excessive mental activity today, and your dealings with others will be surrounded by irritability, impulsive speech and action and nervousness.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The morning hours and until 10:00 a. m. are not a favorable time for new beginnings, for you fail to obtain the support that is necessary for success.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Good results can be attained in your efforts during the entire day, if you will temper your efforts with caution. You will feel a sincerity around you, which will bring you energy, ambition and adaptable qualities to the front.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The influences predominating today bring an optimistic and hopeful frame of mind making this a favorable day for attending to affairs that call for aggressiveness, initiative and muscular energy.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 7:41 p. m. suggests that you give added caution where travel, shipping and agreements are concerned. Between 7:41 a. m. and 2:20 p. m. favors shopping, matters of beauty, art and adornment.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—During the entire day and until midnight favors following routine and attending to unfinished tasks. Avoid risks, and going to extremes. This is an unfavorable day for making important contacts and changes.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Before 7:18 p. m. you can follow your hunches, or you should listen to an intuitive feeling within yourself as to what to do. Your inspirations at this time can be worked out on a conservative basis.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—You should have a feeling of morbidness or confusion, so you should be careful to express yourself to avoid misunderstandings. This is not an auspicious day for new and important undertakings.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Bluegrass Classic A great segment of the American sporting population not engaged in pressing business of a defense or civilian nature is heading toward Louisville, Ky., which for at least three days becomes one of the quaintest cities in America.

For two or three days they'll spend all the money they can beg, borrow or steal—all for the sake of an event, 66 years old, that will be over in two minutes and a fraction of a second.

Louisville hotel men, charging as much as $60 (three-day period) for rooms normally renting at $3.50 or $4.00, will prosper and bemoan the fact that they don't have more rooms to offer to a willing public.

Fod will become a precious commodity as Derby day approaches. Breakfast that morning will be a revelation—when the check comes. Eggs and bacon or ham will have escaped the price ceiling, and gone soaring into the stratosphere.

Taxis to the Downs will be available for quadruple price, and there will be standing room only—probably in the infield—if tickets have not been secured in advance.

As the gay crowds jam through the turnstiles, rambling Churchill Downs prepares for boom business. And it never fails to come. The high and the low gather to do homage to the running hoss. And they pay into the mutuels according to the amount of money they have at hand.

There is just one great difference between the horses and the horse followers. The horse SOMETIMES wins by a nose, but the follower NEVER fails to pay through same. And like it? He really does!

Only Horses Change A chill will grip the progress and finally reaches the seventh race—the Kentucky Derby. A recorded bugle call will resound across the colorful meadows, resplendent with waving flags, hot-house flowers and grass of a blue-green hue. Many bands will play.

There'll be a recording of "My Old Kentucky Home" and many a hard boot will feel a lump in his throat. Others simply will shift from one foot to another, shove a neighbor and wonder what in the hell's holding up the horses?

When the prancing Derby hopefuls are about two or three minutes removed the announcer will say, "The horses are nearing the post!" Tenseness will grow. They'll finally reach the post and then there'll be the patient job of handlers placing the horses in their proper chute positions. Some won't stay put. There'll be one or two high-strung nags that'll insist on rearing and trying to maim the rider. Others will break through.

The big moment always arrives, however. Now they're all lined up... and the barrier lifts! "They're off!" From 90,000 throats the call is echoed. And above the babel of voices there is an indistinguishable mutter. It's the announcer vainly trying to follow progress of the race and keep the poor blokes who can't see a thing—about 40,000 of them—informed. Forty thousand, at least, never see a Derby horse.

It's always the same at Colonel Matt Winn's Churchill Downs... the same colorful crowds, the same outlandish prices. Only difference is the horses.

Who'll win tomorrow? Maybe it'll be Devil Diver. Or Sun Again. Requested or Apache. Or, perhaps, Alsab will fool 'em all. Who can tell? It's worth a fortune for the one who can. Personally, the cards seem stacked.

In Short Four Royal Air Force fliers in Atlanta for a visit wanted to see Bob Jones play golf. Their wish was granted. All from British golfing families, they watched Bob play 18 holes at East Lake and then remarked, "We've seen at last how the game should be played."

A report had it that the youthful Britons knew nothing about golf. I thought that to be most unusual. "It would have been," Jones answered with a grin.

Dr. Pierce Harris, who once played in the Southern League, saw his first game of the season Tuesday night. And it happened to be one of the most entertaining games of the year. "I've quoted some of your stuff in recent sermons," Dr. Harris revealed. I blushed and thanked him, not really knowing just what to say.

Henry Grady, who studies the Derby as a hobby, likes the chances of Devil Diver because Eddie Arcaro, who rode Whirlaway to victory, will be up. He thinks Apache may have a chance. I sort of like Arcaro, with Devil Diver up, myself.

Dr. Louie Newton will have the Crackers and club officials as his guests this Sunday at Druid Hills Baptist church. It's an annual affair.

Crackers Beat Travelers, 7 to 1, in Final Game

Thomassie Hits Homer, Single, Two Doubles

Pete Pokes One Over Second Tier of Signs in Right.

By JACK TROY.

There may be a way of stopping the defending champions of the Southern League, but Little Rock never discovered it. The final game of the series, in fact, wasn't much by way of a contest as the Crackers lengthened their lead with a 7-1 triumph. The other two victories in the series had been by a margin of one run.

Jim Mertz had to take over early in the game, Floyd Stromme getting by the first two men and then going to pieces as Schalk doubled and McBride and Oglesby walked. Mertz walked into the spot and Cantrell retired the side by forcing Oglesby.

Mertz, former Savannah pitcher, was in good form thereafter. In only one inning, the eighth, were the Little Rock Travelers able to bunt any hits. They finally scored a run in this inning as the result of three safeties. Mertz allowed only six hits in a swell job of relief pitching.

CRACKERS GET 13 HITS

Callahan's efforts to halt the Crackers met with disastrous results. He was hit rather freely, the total being 13 and including a field night for Thomassie. Pee Wee counted a home run, two doubles and his single as his contribution to a robust offense.

The game produced an unusual happening, an error by Bates on a ball. It also produced two fine Cracker double plays. The Memphis Chicks move in today for a four-game series, ending the current Cracker home stay. Ed Nowak is figured most likely to pitch. It's ladies' night. The Crackers started slowly last night and gathered momentum as they went along, much to the delight of a paid crowd of 1,575.

CUSTOMARY LEAD

Following a custom which they established at the start of the series, the Crackers ran up a substantial lead on the Travelers. Glock led off the second with a single, Browne walked and Smith singled, scoring Glock.

In the third inning, Thomassie hit a drive to center and turned it into a double by reason of great base running. Letchbas beat out an infield hit. Thomassie moved to third and scored on Glock's fielder's choice.

Thomassie, never wanting to start anything he couldn't finish, led off the fifth with a line drive homer over the second tier of signs.

The Crackers unloaded on Callahan in the seventh, scoring three runs on a double by Thomassie, an infield hit by Letchbas, singles by Glock and Browne, and O'Brien's fielder's choice.

It wasn't until the eighth that Little Rock scored to avoid a shut-out. Blakeney threw wild on Schalk's fielder's choice and Schalk scored from second on McBride's single.

Blakeney doubled, Bates sacrificed, and Blakeney tallied on Callahan's wild pitch as the Crackers scored their seventh and last run in the eighth.

Lawson Betters Record Of Nation's Top Bowler

Atlanta Ace Had Amazing Average of 150 for 6 Straight Games in Duckpin League.

By JACK TROY.

Walter Lawson, who spots every opponent he plays, because Walter Lawson since birth has, in a sense, been crippled, recently completed the most amazing six games of league bowling ever rolled in Atlanta—and, perhaps, in all the United States.

Tuesday night, spilling timber in the Gate City League, Lawson beat the record of the winner of the recent National Duckpin Congress by three pins!

Head-On Crash To Be Feature Of Teter Show

Cars To Collide at 100-Miles-Per-Hour Impact.

Two sensational automobile crashes that will carry Lucky Teter's Hell Drivers to the brink of disaster will be attempted Sunday afternoon at Lakewood park to bring a hair-raising climax to the Hell Drivers' appearances here for the duration of the war.

Throwing caution to the wind, Jim Arttrip and George Simon will demolish two of the cars in a head-on crash at an impact of 100 miles per hour. It's a feat never before attempted and one which is even faster than the near-disastrous crash staged in last Sunday's program.

Daring Harry Daniels will risk his neck in the second deliberate crash of the afternoon. Daniels will remain inside a speeding car as it crashes in midair. Daniels will plunge high into the air, clear the top of a big truck, then nose head-on into two junk cars parked far down the track.

Topping the afternoon's program will be Lucky Teter's astounding automobile jump over two mammoth passenger buses. Fear is admittedly felt for Lucky's safety in the new stunt in view of the near-disastrous results of last Sunday's jump over one bus while he had clear vision.

Dizzy Odds Favor Alsab

Fast Workout By Requested Boosts Stock

Bettors Also Like Devil Diver-Shut Out Entry.

By SID FEDER.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—(AP)—The final future book odds tonight for Saturday's Kentucky Derby still had Alsab—beaten seven times in a row this season—the betting choice, adding another dizzy doing to the collection that makes this the "Daffy" Derby of all times.

Any resemblance between the Alsab of today and the great little juvenile champion of 1941 is purely coincidental. At the same time, game little requested, who came to town all last unheralded yesterday, in spite of his important Wood Memorial and Flamingo stake victories, zoomed up in the current wagers alongside the Chicago hope, stepping the Churchill Downs strip for the first time with a neat 1:54 3-5 mile and eighth workout.

Requested—clicked off the last quarter in a snappy 24 4-5, and didn't complain about being the least bit tired at the finish. The result was that, although the local betting odds still had Alsab at 3-1-2 to one in the futures, the chances were the Derby fans sitting in on the party would make either Requested or Mrs. Payne Whitney's solid entry, Devil Diver and shut out the favorite's choice when the barrier springs on this 68th running of the Derby.

Meantime, while Alsab figured to plummet not only out of the favorite's spot but also from a place among the top three choices, it was learned the chances for Warren Wright's Sun Again to get to the post had gone from bad to worse. Although Wright and Trainer Ben Jones hadn't made a final decision, they had swung to keep keeping their big quartered husky at home.

If the Derby's Bright Chestnut Bay stays out of 15 horses will be in just about as wide open a field as this turf taffy-pull has ever sported. And as for the Old Kentucky Home roll over the Downs since the concert was put on for War Admiral and 19 others in '37.

By a good margin in the "experts" consensus, the horse to beat is Devil Diver, husky son of St. Germans, who sired two Derby winners in Twenty Grand and Bad Venture.

DOC PROTHRO. 'Doc' Is Back As Southern League Pilot. Peppery Prothro Served 2-Year 'Sentence' at Philadelphia.

One of baseball's most colorful managers is back in a Southern League uniform and will lead a flock of victory-starved Memphis Chickies into Ponce de Leon park for the opener of a four-game series tonight.

Doc Prothro, the old tooth-puller, was subjected to a bit of painful extraction when Joe Engel's "Million-Dollar Babies" swept the three-game series in Memphis. So peppery Prothro is about it to be tied as he returns to Ponce de Leon in the role of enemy after spending two years, or virtually a lifetime, as manager of the hapless Phils.

There's no telling how much the two years at Philadelphia aged Prothro, but according to reports he recovered during the winter and is his same old battling self on the coaching lines.

Welcome back to a good league, Doc. It may be just as hard to win, but the surroundings are so much more congenial.

"OPEN-HOUSE" OCCASION.—The State Distributing Company celebrated its fourth anniversary with an "open-house" occasion Wednesday, from 12 noon until 10 o'clock at night, at its warehouse and offices, 443 Whitehall street.

The headquarters were handily decorated and fitted up for the occasion, and there was a sumptuous supply of food to satisfy the inner man, along with ample beverages and drinks. Something like 1,000 or more were present, which included retailers and their employees, many with their families, and many patrons and friends, many from as far distant as Camilla, Dawson and Albany, Ga.

The theme of the anniversary was the promotion of "Ancient Aged 5," one of Schenley's outstanding and most popular brands of whisky. The picture above shows: (left) "Jerry" Giraitis, southeastern division manager for Schenley Distillers; (center) Dave N. Meyer, president of the State Distributing Company, who was host, and Jack Werson, national sales manager for Schenley's "Ancient Aged-5," who was here from New York to join in the celebration.

When you pack a "war" lunch be sure it "packs" plenty of health. Use whole grain or enriched breads and fill sandwiches with cheese, egg, meat, fruit, and vegetable combinations . . . to give energy and protect health.

Packing Victory In Lunch Boxes

Pack victory in the lunch box, from now until vacation time if you pack school lunches; every day for the duration if you pack lunches for war workers. Food is health and energy, and lunch is not a time for snacking if one has a war job or some growing to do. Getting a good portion of the daily food needs in the lunch box is easy if the bread chosen is chock full of vitamins and minerals, and the fillings are foods which contain the food essentials. Hard-cooked eggs and bacon, chopped meats, cheese, fruits and crunchy raw vegetables help ward off "hidden hunger." Small baked custards help with the milk quota and can be carried in a small jar or other container is provided, or they may be packed right in the individual custard cup in which they are baked.

To facilitate the lunch packer's problem here are suggestions and recipes for sandwich making: Sandwich fillings may be made up in advance and kept in the refrigerator—two kinds of bread give interest to sandwiches. White and rye, or bran bread and white, nut bread once in a while, Boston brown bread occasionally, whole wheat or oatmeal bread are favorites, also raisin bread. Whole wheat and rye bread are good sources of food iron and vitamin B, and white bread made from the new enriched flour contains, of course, a higher content of vitamin B factors and food iron.

Here are some good sandwich spreads that you might like to make up and keep on hand for sandwiches for the children or other members of the family—they are popular with all, and will keep for about a week if stored in covered glass jars. Ham's Bean Spread makes a hearty, satisfying sandwich. Mix 2 cups canned or home cooked baked beans with 1 cup finely chopped cooked ham, 1-2 cup very finely cut raw celery, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 teaspoon grated horseradish, a little salt and enough salad dressing to moisten. Use this with rye or enriched white bread and, for better nutrition, spread each slice of bread with butter or with a good brand of margarine before adding the filling.

Cheese 'n' Chili Spread. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in a saucepan, add 2 tablespoons flour mixed with 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1-2 teaspoon salt, then stir in 1-3 cup tomato juice and 3-4 tablespoons chili sauce. Stir until thickened, remove from the fire, add 1-2 pound grated American cheese and 1 well beaten egg and stir until thoroughly blended. Cool well before using. Spread on whole wheat or enriched white bread.

Cottage cheese moistened with salad dressing or mayonnaise and mixed with chopped raisins, or with grated raw carrots, or with chopped olives or pickle relish makes delicious sandwiches. The raisin mixture may be used on raisin or whole wheat bread and the others on almost any kind.

Thin slices of sharp yellow cheese with currant jelly or with apple butter or with strawberry jam is another good combination, and cheese is another food rich in calcium and body building protein.

1. Cream Cheese and Beet: Combine equal parts of cream cheese and chopped cooked beets. Blend thoroughly, adding salt to taste. Spread on both sides of bread and put together with lettuce.

2. Cottage Cheese and Carrots: To one part of grated raw carrot, add three parts cottage cheese. Add salt, pepper and finely chopped sweet pickle to taste. Blend. Spread on both sides of bread and put together with lettuce.

3. Veal and Peach: Combine 1 cup sieved or canned peaches with 1-2 cup ground veal and 1-2 cup ground nut meats. Add 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and season with salt and pepper. This filling keeps 1 week in the refrigerator. (Store in covered container.)

4. Left-Over Meat: Put scraps of any left-over meats through food-chopper to make 2-3 cups of ground meat. Add 2 tablespoons grated onion. Combine with 1-2 cup tomato juice. Season well with salt, a pinch of cayenne pepper and 1 teaspoon chili powder. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thoroughly blended and reaches the boiling point. Cool. This filling keeps 2 or 3 weeks in the refrigerator. (Store in covered container.)

5. Cheese and Egg: Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 1 teaspoon grated onion and cook for 1 minute. Blend in 1-2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon mustard and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup evaporated milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and is smooth. Add 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1-2 pound freshly grated American cheese. Continue cooking until cheese melts into mixture. Add 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs. Cool. This filling keeps 2 weeks in the refrigerator. (Store in covered container.)

Use Eggs Freely In Season of Plenty

At this time of the year hens are laying well and egg prices are low enough for us to use eggs freely and with clear conscience toward the budget. Eggs should be included each day in every normal diet, for they furnish many of the essential food elements—proteins, fat, minerals and vitamins which build body tissues, make strong nerves, strong bones and teeth and rich blood. When high in price it is often difficult to get enough eggs into the daily meals, but now's the time to make up for other seasons. Let's get out our best recipes and make lots of omelets, souffles and custards, and indulge in a golden mound of fluffy scrambled eggs for Sunday night supper. We might be saving our sugar allowance for a few days and make an angel food cake to eat with strawberries! Here are some of my favorite egg dishes:

Asparagus Souffle that is a bit different. Use a deep oven glass baking dish for it, one that is 1 1/2-quart size. Cook 2 pounds of large fresh asparagus until it is just tender. Cut off the tips in pieces about 3 inches long. Grease the baking dish liberally with butter and arrange the asparagus tips upright around the inside of the dish, so that the top of the stalks come just to the top of the dish. Rub the remainder of the stalks through a coarse strainer. Melt 4 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan, stir in 5 tablespoons flour and when mixed, add 1 cup milk and continue stirring until the sauce is very thick, smooth and boiling. Remove from the fire and stir in the asparagus pulp 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, the well-beaten yolks of 5 eggs and 1-4 cup grated well-flavored American cheese. Mix well, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 5 eggs and pour the mixture into the baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven—375 to 400 degrees—for about 50 minutes or until well puffed, golden brown and firm to the touch. Do not open the oven door until the souffle has cooked at least 40 minutes. Serve right away.

A Dessert Omelet always adds a luxury touch to a meal, and is fine when the preceding part of the meal has been low in protein—perhaps a vegetable salad and hot rolls made the main part of your luncheon or supper, or perhaps your dinner course was mainly composed of leftovers. Or maybe you just feel like having a sweet omelet, and here it is—one for 4 portions, as it is always difficult to make a larger omelet than this. Better make two, a large and a small one, if you have to serve 6 or more people. Separate the whites and yolks of 8 eggs. Beat the yolks until frothy with 2 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons water. Beat the whites until very stiff with 1/2 teaspoon salt. Fold the whites into the yolks. Heat a large shallow frying pan and melt 2 tablespoons butter in it. Pour in the omelet and let cook slowly until brown on top. Put the frying pan into a hot oven for about 5 minutes to cook the top of the omelet—do not let it brown. Remove from the oven, spread quickly with a thick layer of apricot jam, pineapple preserve or whatever you prefer, fold over and turn out on a hot platter. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons sifted powdered sugar or pour 2 tablespoons rum or brandy around the omelet and light it—serve blazing, and at once.

A hot Shrimp Mousse is another big suggestion. Clean 2 cups cooked shrimp—fresh cooked or canned—and chop them very fine. Scald 1/2 cup milk with a slice of onion and 1 whole clove. Crumb 1/2 cup stale bread into very fine crumbs. Strain the scalded milk over the crumbs and let stand until the crumbs are very soft, then add 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-4 cup melted butter or margarine, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, the shrimp and stir until well mixed. Beat the whites of 5 eggs until stiff, fold them into the fish mixture and pour into a well greased pint sized pudding mold. Cover the top with a piece of greased paper and stand the mold on a rack in a pan half full of hot water. Cover and cook slowly, keeping the water boiling gently and steadily, for 45 minutes or until the fish mixture is firm. Turn out carefully onto a hot dish and surround with the following sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and stir in 1 tablespoon flour and 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix, add 1/2 cup cold water and stir until boiling and slightly thickened. Beat the yolks of 3 eggs until very light, add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and then stir in the hot sauce a little at a time. Cook over hot water for a minute or two, season with 1/2 teaspoon salt and a little paprika and serve as soon as possible.

Other Suggestions: For a particularly special dessert serve pieces of fresh angel food cake with sliced strawberries and whipped cream.

A light-as-a-feather soufflé is a work of art as well as a very nutritious dish.

Beef Shortcake

For a luncheon or supper take one large baked shortcake, split it while it's piping hot and spread butter or margarine generously over it. Then spread with a well-seasoned meat filling and over it spoon a mock turtle sauce. The result is a dish light yet nourishing, and it makes wonderful eating. Follow these directions for making it:

SHORTCAKE.
2 cups flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
4 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup milk
Sift flour, measure, add salt and baking powder and sift again. Cut in shortening, then add milk until a soft dough is formed. Roll out dough in one square piece, put in greased baking pan and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for about 20 minutes. Split the shortcake while hot, butter and spread filling between the layers.

FILLING.
2 tablespoons shortening or butter
1-4 cup onions, chopped
1 pound beef, ground
1-4 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
1-2 can condensed tomato soup

CONSTANT QUALITY

It is agreed that flour is the major ingredient of any baking, and it is therefore important that the flour you use be of the finest and most constant quality that science can produce. Scientists and millers have spared no expense to bring you White Lily, enriched with vitamin B1 and essential food minerals. More than a flour, White Lily has been an institution in Southern homes for more than fifty years.

In meal planning, select courses that will contrast with each other. A bland course should be followed by a more highly flavored one; a liquid by a solid one, a soft or "mushy" one by a crisp one.

An easy way to peel fresh pineapple is to slice the fruit crosswise, stamp out the center core with a small cookie or vegetable cutter and then peel each slice, removing the "eyes" as you go along.

May is a month when pineapples are plentiful and a good time to indulge your weakness for them! Be sure the fruit is ripe, then peel and sweeten it several hours before serving. Keep sliced pineapple closely covered as its flavor is a penetrating one and will spread to other foods—especially butter, milk or cream.

A tip to the Budget-wise!

Measure out only a rounded teaspoonful of Luzianne Coffee to a cup instead of a heaping teaspoonful! Cut your coffee cost in half!

MAY PRINCESS—Students at Georgia Junior College stole a march on the calendar yesterday when they held their annual May Day exercises one day before the month of flowers made its entrance. Reason for the shift was the advance of graduation date and start of summer school. The festivities were held at Indian Creek Lodge, near Stone Mountain. Participants, above, are: Left to right (front), Melva Hale and Joanna Dougherty, pages; (seated) Anne Franklin, Nina Hilsman, maid of honor; Elizabeth Tompkins, queen; Molly Puckett, (standing) Mary Sue Harper, Margaret Anne Womack, Hope Childs, Harriet Haner, Margaret Morton and Frances Spain.

Guggenheim's Four Showgirls To Receive Only $1,000 Each

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP)—A little over $1,000 isn't chicken feed, but neither is it the wealth of four former showgirls who were to believe they would get from the estate of the late William Guggenheim.

Cotton Firms Will Co-operate In War Effort

Pledge Made Here by Head of Manufacturers' Association.

"The American cotton industry will co-operate 100 per cent with the government in its war effort," says W. N. Banks, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association. "All else is secondary."

Here for today's opening of the association's 46th annual convention, Banks said his industry would accept the ceiling on virtually all types of cotton goods, based on a price of 20.37 cents a pound for raw cotton, as ordered yesterday by Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

"I am confident," he said, "that if any injustices occur, they will be quickly adjusted."

The price base set by Henderson is 1.1 cents below the raw cotton ceiling allowed in the price control act. However, Banks said this was not the only variable factor, mentioning specifically wages and cost of machinery.

Dr. C. T. Murchison, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, observed that ceilings were no new things in cotton goods. The first was adopted a year ago, he explained, adding that the industry for the last year had been working hard to co-ordinate its program with that of the government.

Necessary for War. "The industry," he said, "recognizes the principle that regulatory efforts such as these are necessary for the war effort. It will do all in its power to see that these are carried out efficiently and fairly. It recognizes that certain inequities and injustices are bound to arise, and feels certain that the proper administrative machinery will be set in motion to correct them."

The cotton manufacturers open their convention this morning, and conclude tomorrow. Speakers on the opening program include President Banks, John F. Chapman, foreign editor of Business Week; William P. Witherow, president of Blaw-Knox Company, Pittsburgh, and president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

5 Unidentified Seamen Buried At Brunswick

Rites Held for Victims of Tanker, Sunk by Enemy Sub.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. BRUNSWICK, Ga., April 30.—Bodies of five unidentified seamen, who lost their lives on April 8 when their tanker was torpedoed by an enemy submarine off the coast, were interred in Palmetto cemetery here this week with impressive public ceremonies. The bodies recovered from the salvaged tankers had been held here for several days in the hope that they would be identified but all efforts failed.

The five unknown men were buried side by side. The burial rituals were conducted by the Rev. T. L. Harnsberger, of the First Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Father Philip A. Hannon, S. M., of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church.

Among those present to pay a last tribute to these men who made the supreme sacrifice were the commander of their torpedoed vessel, Captain T. P. Davenport, his wife and little daughter, of Port Arthur, Texas; S. H. Rice and H. G. House, representatives of the Texas Oil Company, of New York, owners of the tanker, and four members of the crew who were among the survivors.

The ceremony lot where the men are buried will be in public charge and members of the garden clubs will beautify the lot.

Tomorrow night's attraction will offer these two artists in "The Bohemian Girl" with Enrico Leide, director of music at Brenau, conducting. A concert will be given at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by the eminent Polish pianist, Franciszek Zachara.

The festival will close Sunday afternoon with a concert by the Brenau Symphony Orchestra and Choral Club at 2:30 o'clock, followed by a dress parade, presented jointly by the Brenau and Riverside Academy bands.

50 Cadets End Training at Moody Field

Graduation of Flyers Is Marked by Exercises at Valdosta.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., April 30.—Moody Field yesterday graduated its first class when 50 flying cadets received diplomas and wings, the graduation being climaxed with a dance at the Officers' Club in the evening when the cadets, now second lieutenants, were the guests of the officers of Moody Field. The music for the dance was provided by the post military band from Turner Field, Albany.

At 10:30 o'clock in the morning Colonel Fred C. Nelson, commandant of Moody Field, made the principal speech and presented diplomas to the class. Lieutenant Colonel Edgar Todd, director of training, presented the long-awaited wings to the cadets, and Captain Joseph J. Eaton Jr., commandant of cadets, administered the oath of office. Post Chaplain Lieutenant James R. Davidson gave the invocation.

The class was composed of young men from all parts of the United States, many of them having left college to join the Air Corps. It is understood that by early Corps fall men will be graduated at the field in handling four-engine bombers—flying fortresses, as they are called.

People Will Save Medical School, Bunce Says

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 30.—(P) The University of Georgia School of Medicine will be placed "beyond the clutches of any dictator," long before students are affected by removal of the institution from the accredited list of medical colleges, the Medical Association of Georgia was told today.

Dr. Allen H. Bunce, president of the association, in a report prepared for delivery today to the 33rd annual meeting, said the Medical School here was dropped from the accredited list by the American Medical Association "because of threatened political danger to its control."

The school was one of several university units stricken from lists by accrediting agencies after dismissal of two University of Georgia professors by the Board of Regents. Governor Talmadge had charged the educators with advocating racial co-education.

"Just as Belgium was endangered by the German invasion of Poland," said Dr. Bunce, "so was this medical school endangered by an arbitrary dictatorship controlling the University System of Georgia."

"Let no man be mistaken. We have a good medical school at Augusta and we will keep a good medical school. The students deserve it. Their fathers and mothers who are making such noble sacrifices to send their boys and girls to school deserve it. The suspension will not affect the present student body or those that enroll before September 1, 1942, and long before the time for them to be graduated the people of Georgia will see to it that both the control and the teaching of this medical school are beyond the clutches of any dictator."

In his report on medical problems, Dr. Bunce said the task of supplying doctors to the armed forces and maintaining medical service for those at home would tax all physicians and facilities to the limit "but it can and will be done."

He reviewed the 1941 report of the State Department of Health and said that department is "perhaps the state's most valuable asset."

Dr. Murdock Euen, of Atlanta, showed the physicians and surgeons a colored motion picture detailing the removal of a cancerous larynx, accompanying it with discussion of this frequently fatal malignancy which makes up about 5 per cent of all bodily cancers.

Dr. Euen emphasized that the commonest outward symptom of cancer of the larynx is persistent hoarseness—which may be caused by cancer or by syphilis.

An exhibit prepared by three professors of the University of Georgia School of Medicine won first place at the convention.

The exhibit concerns endocrinology as it relates to reproduction, and was arranged by Drs. Robert E. Greenblatt, H. S. Kupperman, and L. O. Hair.

Two other Augusta doctors, connected with the Medical school, won first place in the exhibits by individuals. Unusual chest X-rays taken by Dr. L. Palmer Holmes and Dr. Lucius N. Todd won the blue ribbon. Drs. Earl Floyd and James L. Pittman, of Atlanta, won second prize in the individual contest for a series of pictures of tumors. Third place went to a series of illustrations of treatment of fractured clavicles by Atlanta's Dr. Lawson Thornton.

In the institutional exhibit contest, second place went to the Ponce de Leon Eye and Ear Infirmary for its illustrations of ocular diseases and laryngeal tumors. The Georgia State Tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto won the third place ribbon with a series of X-rays of unusual chest cases.

Selection of the winners was made by the association committee on scientific work, composed of Drs. William R. Dancy, of Savannah; Richard Binion, of Milledgeville; Mark S. Dougherty Jr., of Atlanta, and Edgar D. Shanks, of Atlanta.

CONGRATULATIONS, MISTER!—That's what Lieutenant W. H. Williamson Jr., USNR (left), and Lieutenant R. K. Brown, USNR (center), said Wednesday to Ensign Jesse Franklin Cleveland, USNR (right), of Spartanburg, S. C., when Ensign Cleveland arranged to resign his commission in order to enlist for officer-flight training and seek his Navy wings.

Ensign Resigns Commission To Study Aviation

Jesse Franklin Cleveland Will Become Cadet at Atlanta Field.

It isn't often that a commissioned officer in the Navy swaps his gold stripes for an enlisted man's uniform, but that's what Ensign Jesse Franklin Cleveland arranged to do Wednesday at the Naval Aviation Selection Board in Atlanta.

The reason? Well, he likes flying so much he's resigning his commission to enlist for naval aviation training, and hopes to begin his flight instruction soon at the Naval Reserve Aviation Base in Atlanta, in the Navy's Class V-5 training program.

Son of Mrs. Arthur F. Cleveland, of 589 East Main street, Spartanburg, Ensign Cleveland, 21, was commissioned March 2 of this year, following the completion of his NROTC training and his graduation with a B. A. degree in business administration at Harvard.

He has been on inactive duty since being commissioned, but was in training during the summer of 1940 aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming, and last summer on shore patrol aboard the U. S. S. Dubuque.

No neophyte at flying a plane, the young officer held a private pilot's license even in his high school days.

"I have always liked aviation and want to fly for the Navy," he said, when asked his reason for resigning his commission in order to enlist for training.

In college Ensign Cleveland was vice president of the Harvard Flying Club, in addition to being a member of the Hasty Pudding Club, the Speakers' Club and the editorial staff of the Harvard Lampoon.

When the young Spartanburg man starts his flight training, he will be on his way toward winning another commission as an ensign, but as a pilot officer. On completion of his instruction here, he will be sent to one of the three great naval air stations at Pensacola, Jacksonville, or Corpus Christi to finish training and win the coveted navy wings of gold.

OPA Tightens Up

Tire Rationing Rules

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(P) The OPA tightened up tire rationing regulations today, directing local rationing boards to deny applications of anyone whose present tires become unusable "through abuse or neglect."

OPA also announced that after May 1 no new tires will be granted in cases where recapped tires can be used instead.

The abuse-or-neglect order becomes effective after June 1, OPA said, declaring that "neither new nor recapped casings will be released to anyone who, in the opinion of the local rationing board, has not given proper care to the tires to be replaced."

Phenix City Rents

Show Price Increase

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(P) White tenants in rented houses in Phenix City, Ala., have had their rental bills increased by a fourth during the two and a half years since the outbreak of the European war, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

For Negro tenants, said the report, the increase since October, 1939, has been 11.7 per cent.

The Phenix City advance in rentals for white tenants was the highest of 36 cities studied by the bureau in a survey of military and war industry areas.

At Gadsden, Ala., another of the 36, the increase has been 9.9 per cent for whites and 8 per cent for Negroes, the survey showed.

858 MEN REGISTER.

ROCHELLE, Ga., April 30.—According to records of the Wilcox county selective service board, 858 men registered Monday.

35 Billion Allocated For U. S. Planes, Parts

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(P) More than $35,500,000,000 of all the war funds thus far appropriated of the $162,416,000,000 authorized since June, 1940, WPB disclosed the funds for planes compared with $32,122,000,000 set aside for ordnance, and $15,457,000,000—or 10 per cent of the total—for naval ships.

In a summary showing distributed by congress or allotted by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—approximately 23 per cent—has been allocated for planes, engines and aircraft parts, the War Production Board said today.

PICNIC SUPPER.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 30.—Members of Benevolent Lodge No. 3, F. & A. M. Masons, were hosts to their families and 35 Georgia Military College cadets at a picnic supper last night at Lake Laurel, recreation park of the Georgia State College for Women.

Music Festival Throng To See Tech Hi Band

Maneuvers and Special Stunts To Be Given at Fete May 9.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Tech High school's marching, military band, one of the score or more which will be parading on Grant field in the fourth annual Greater Atlanta Music Festival sponsored by The Constitution Saturday night, May 9, won a "one plus" rating when it competed in the state music festival at Milledgeville recently. It is a Class A band, directed by Robert K. Hamilton, which has made 43 marching and concert appearances this year. It will be one of the bands featured when Dorothy Lamour, the movie star, makes her personal appearance at the festival to help launch the Fulton and DeKalb bond pledge campaign May 11. The bands, 1,258 boys and girls of the Atlanta elementary schools, who are to be directed by a teachers' committee headed by Mrs. R. W. Sistrunk, 200 flag swimmers and 200 baton twirlers will help make the fourth festival an event long to be remembered. Special stunts are being prepared by the Tech High band for

The Constitution festival. Maneuvers which have never before been performed are to be exhibited on that occasion. Personnel of this band follows:

Venezuela's Indians

Again Gather Rubber
CARACAS, Venezuela, April 30. (P)—With the incentive of a 35-cent-a-pound government offer, the Indians of Amazonas territory on the upper Grinoco have started gathering wild rubber and sending it to the river ports again after years of neglect occasioned by low prices, the Venezuelan S. I. V. news agency reported today.

Registration List May Total 35,000

More than 35,000 Atlantians probably will be registered and qualified to cast their ballots in the May 27 special election for mayor, Joe L. Richardson, city clerk, said yesterday. He warned all those who have not returned the postal cards sent to them in the purge of the voters' lists to do so immediately to avoid confusion later. Present indications are the istration will be the largest in the city's history. The DeKalb section of the city has about 1,000 more names than in any previous year, he said.

COFFEE HAS ENLISTED FOR VICTORY!

YOU CAN STILL ENJOY COFFEE--DON'T WASTE IT!

The War Production Board has placed restrictions on the distribution of all coffees. The order reduces the amount of coffee which may be delivered by roasters to 75% of deliveries during the corresponding period of 1941. This action will conserve supplies now on hand for the Army, Navy and civilians and is necessary because of wartime demands on merchant ships that normally transport coffee.

AS America's largest coffee merchant, A&P assures its customers that it will make every effort to see that each of you gets your share of all coffee available under the order. To do this A&P asks you to share with your neighbor by buying only one package of coffee at a time. Thus, you and your neighbors have an equal opportunity to continue to enjoy America's favorite beverage.

Help conserve coffee in your own kitchen. Do not make more than you know you and your family will drink. Be sure that every cup you make is the best possible—better to have one cup of good coffee than two poor ones.

Follow these rules for a cup of good coffee:

1. Buy coffee that is freshly roasted.
2. Buy coffee that is freshly ground and correctly ground for your coffee pot.
3. Be sure your coffee pot is absolutely clean.
4. Carefully measure both coffee and water—one heaping tablespoonful of coffee for each cup (½ pint) of water.
5. Serve immediately after brewing.

Follow these simple, practical rules. They'll help you make and enjoy perfect coffee every time. Don't waste coffee—give your full support to our government's conservation order. Enjoy coffee and share that pleasure with your neighbor.

'Rattlesnake' Killer Must Hang Today

Governor Turns Down Reprieve for California Barber.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., April 30. (AP)—Robert S. James, convicted of drowning his sixth wife after rattlesnake fangs failed to kill her, must die on the gallows tomorrow morning.
"This man is guilty," Governor Culbert L. Olson said late yesterday in turning down a reprieve for the beady-eyed Los Angeles barber.
"I am convinced that James is guilty of the most abhorrent murder of his wife. If there was ever a case for capital punishment, this is one." The state charged he killed his wife for her insurance. Thus virtually vanished James' last hope in his lengthy fight for life, a fight he has carried twice to the United States supreme court without success.
The crime was committed in Los Angeles in 1935, when hanging still was the legal method of execution in California. Consequently James must be executed that way. The present method is the lethal gas chamber.

Civilian Pilot Guard Urged For Shipping

Volunteers in Small Planes Could Be Used, Says Senator.

WASHINGTON, April 30. (AP)—Senator Brooks, Republican, Illinois, urged in the senate today that an air patrol made up of volunteer civilian pilots flying small planes be established to "form a continuous air umbrella" over shipping in a 50-mile-wide zone along the Atlantic coastline.
Brooks said that 1,000 competent pilots could be enlisted for such a patrol without difficulty and could operate small planes fitted with a recently invented rack carrying depth charges for combating submarines.
Sufficient planes were available, he said, from among those now frozen in stocks at commercial plants. He said he was informed that 750 planes of this type now were stacked out at one factory.
The Illinois senator said that up to April 16 the government had announced the sinking of 131 ships along the Atlantic coastline. He said 857 crew members of these ships had been reported killed, 1,084 were missing and 3,593 had been rescued.
He contended these losses in vessels, averaging more than one a day, virtually had offset output under the cargo ship construction program.
Brooks said that air protection of coastal shipping might solve the problem of a threatened gasoline shortage on the eastern seaboard. Senator Shipstead, Republican, Minnesota, said the same result might be accomplished by the construction of steel or wooden barges to transport oil on inland waterways.

U. S. Parleys On Contracts Save Millions

Preliminary Talks Held With Only Two Companies.

WASHINGTON, April 30. (AP)—The War and Navy departments reported today that preliminary discussions with two contractors—Continental Motors Corporation and Jack & Heintz, Inc.—"already have resulted in savings on government contracts of approximately $50,000,000."
These savings were announced in a statement telling of the creation of official boards to examine the books of war contractors suspected of making excess profits, paying too high salaries or granting large bonuses.
The board will act on information "from any source" and will co-operate closely with Army and Navy purchasing agencies, it was said.
The boards' function, it was explained, will be to obtain from contractors agreement to an overall price adjustment or refund which will enable war and Navy buying agencies to renegotiate contracts.
Preliminary discussions already have been completed with some contractors, disclosing that the problem of what is a fair profit differs in almost every case, it was said.

TANKS FROM PLUMBING.
OTTAWA, April 30. (Canadian Press)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board today announced an order standardizing varieties of plumbing and heating equipment and estimated the ruling would release enough metal to make 250 infantry tanks.
